CORBIN VOTERS SAY 'YES'

Yea or Nay: More than 1,600 votes were cast Tuesday in Corbin's alcohol referendum. Lauran West casts a ballot at Central Primary.

Package alcohol referendum passes by 98 votes

Corbin has gone from moist to wet.

In Tuesday's special election, voters narrowly approved a measure to allow package alcohol sales within the city limits by a combined total of 887-789 — just 98 votes separating the two sides.

The contentious referendum was no surprise to organizers who proposed the ballot initiative in December. Barbourville voted down a similar proposal last week. Anti-alcohol forces, emboldened by the victory, had hoped to parlay that success in Corbin.

Kurt Kraus, Chairman of Corbin Citizens for Economic Progress, the group behind the effort to bring expanded liquor sales to Corbin, said after Tuesday's vote he felt the result was a "progressive move" for the city that could be used as a "springboard" for future economic progress.

"This isn't about me or anybody else," Kraus said. "This is about the taxes this is going to bring in and the money for our city and the truth about what this will do for us ... We just stuck by our guns and told the truth and let people make their own minds up."

Not everyone was celebratory.

"We are disappointed," said Chad Fugitt, Pastor at Central Baptist Church and chairman of Concerned Citizens for Corbin, a group created to defeat the proposal. "We had hoped the community would vote the proposal down. At the same time, our heart for this community has not changed. We loved this community before this vote and through this process and we are going to continue to love this community," he said.

Fugitt said these are the issues that invoke strong opinions on both sides, but everyone he has spoken with on both sides has remained respectful and he is confident any rifts will quickly heal.

Concerned Citizens for Corbin provided a well organized opposition to expanded liquor sales, printing and distributing over 500 yard signs and canvassing neighborhoods roughly a week before the vote in an effort to win support.

The efforts paid some dividends, even though they fell

City leaders make Salmons a full-time Main Street Manager

■ By Dean Manning
dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

Almost two years after commissioners made the Corbin Main Street Manager position part-time in a budget-cutting move, commissioners voted Monday night to return it to a full-time position.

The commissioners approved the motion to make Andrew Salmons a full-time employee on the recommendation of new City Manager Michael Phillips.

"I'm satisfied that there is," Phillips said when asked if there is room in the city's budget for this.

Phillips said he spoke with Salmons Tuesday afternoon about the salary requirements. The details are still being ironed out and will need to be approved by the commissioners at the March meeting. Phillips said he will not release details until then.

Phillips said the Main Street manager position has evolved since June 2010 when the commissioner voted to make it a part-time position.

Salmons, who has been on the job since September, said it was a mutual decision to return the position to full-time.

"Once I got into the position, we saw what needed to be done," Salmons said

Four indicted for multi-county burglary spree

■ By Mark White

mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

So far four people have been indicted by a Whitley County Grand Jury in connection with a multi-county burglary ring.

Two additional suspects remain incarcerated in the Whitley County Detention Center and have been ordered to report to Whitley Circuit Court next month to see if they have been indicted by a grand jury.

All this has stemmed from a joint investigation involving the Whitley County Sheriff's Department, Williamsburg Police Department and Kentucky State Police into an area burglary ring.

In most cases, police say the suspects simply smashed in doors when they believed the residents weren't home, and concentrated on taking primarily jewelry, cash and pills while bypassing expensive

Corbin Middle School student wins PRIDE's annual t-shirt design contest

■ By Trent Knuckles
tknuckles@corbinnewsjournal.com

A Corbin seventh grader is the winner of an annual contest to design the PRIDE Spring Cleanup t-shirt, which will be given to thousands of volunteers this year during organized cleanups throughout southeastern Kentucky.

Mackenzie Walden's award-winning design was selected from among 1,612 contest entries submitted by students from 38 counties. Her t-shirt design featured the slogan "Saving Our World, One Cleanup at a Time."

Walden learned her entry was the top pick during a special assembly at the Corbin Middle School gymnasium Monday afternoon.

Fifth District U.S. Congressman Harold "Hal" Rogers (R-Somerset) attended the event and announced Walden as the winner. She was also named PRIDE's Volunteer of the Month for February.

"It's terrific. She did a great job," Rogers said of Walden's winning design, following the event. "It is amazing to me how much interest this competition has generated in the schools. But that's the whole idea of PRIDE. It's grassroots. It's all about the volunteers. PRIDE wants everyone to have an involvement in the project. It is successful only because of the thousands of people who want to pitch in and help."

Walden said the design took her "only a few minutes" to create, and said she was surprised her idea was the judges' favorite.

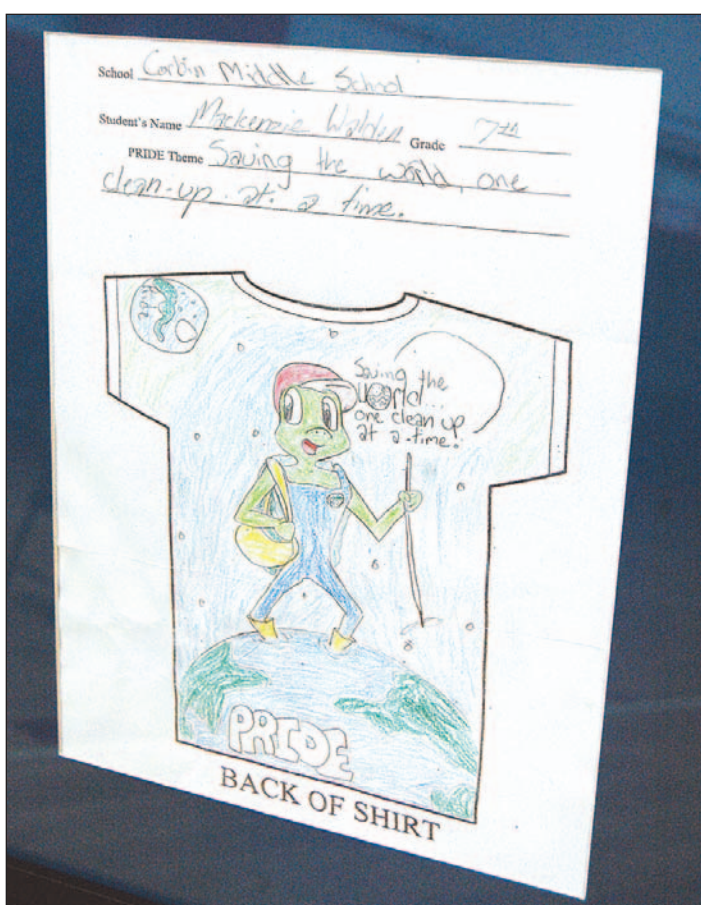

"I enjoy art. I just love drawing things," Walden said. "I didn't even know I was in the running for this at all. I didn't think it was me. They did a good job keeping it a secret."

The PRIDE initiative - which stands for Personal Responsibility in a Desirable Environment - was launched in 1997 by Rogers and the late General James Bickford, the former Secretary of the Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet. Their vision was to restore the natural beauty of their native region by encouraging citizens to take responsibility for protecting their environment and by providing the education and resources they need to do so.

The PRIDE initiative is coordinated by Eastern Kentucky PRIDE, Inc., a non-profit organization. It links citizens with the resources of local, state, and federal agencies to improve the region's water quality, advance solid waste problems, and advance environmental education.

During PRIDE Spring Cleanup Month in April, communities will recruit volunteers to pick up litter. PRIDE will provide free T-shirts, trash bags and gloves for the volunteers, as well as funding for local governments to dispose of litter, remove dumps and offer free trash drop-off events. In 2011, there were 33,409 Spring Cleanup volunteers across the region, which was the largest turnout since PRIDE began in 1997.

participation in the PRIDE program. The schools PRIDE club led an effort in 2008 to eliminate the use of Styrofoam trays in the school's cafeteria. The school won a PRIDE Campus of the Year Award in 2009 for the use of its greenhouse to grow and distribute plants in the community.

Corbin Middle School Principal Ramona Davis said the school has received grants from PRIDE to buy equipment for the greenhouse, fund the construction of an outdoor classroom and shelter area, and buy testing equipment to monitor water quality in Moore's Branch, a creek that runs near the school.

"I want to thank you for those 15 years of dedication," Rogers told students. "This school is a big salvation, and you have been there ever since we have had the PRIDE program."

The 2012 Spring Cleanup kick-off event will be Saturday, March 24, at the Cumberland Falls State Resort Park. Volunteers will receive a free PRIDE T-shirt, lunch and chance at door prizes. Volunteer registration will begin at 9 a.m. at the gift shop, and the cleanup will start at 10 a.m.

Corbin gets $100,000 for Bacon Creek project

Biking, walking trail will be completed in phases as funding becomes available

■ By Trent Knuckles

tknuckles@corbinnewsjournal.com

A biking and walking trail along Bacon Creek in Corbin is one step closer to reality as city leaders accepted a $100,000 check from Kentucky Gov. Steve Beshear Wednesday to help fund the long-term project.

Corbin Mayor Willard McBurney said the paved trail, which will start near 23rd Street, and will eventually go all the way to the Corbin Bypass, would be done in phases as funds allow.

"It's just another thing that you point to that improves the quality of life in our city," McBurney said. "It's a really pretty area in through there. Just about anything that people will enjoy and that will get them away from the TV and get out and walk is a good thing."

The money for the project was given to the state through a land and water conservation grant administered by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

City officials say most of the easements for the project have already been obtained, but there are still a few to secure.

The path will include a pair of bridges that will cross the creek at strategic points. Most of the work on the project will be done by city employees from the Public Works Department. McBurney estimated the costs at $200,000.

Unlike the Corbin Creekwalk - a half mile trek that runs along Lynn Camp Creek in the heart of Corbin - this project won't be lighted, McBurney said.

City leaders do plan, however, some places for walkers and bikers to rest with benches and garbage cans.

Marlon Sams, Director of Parks and Recreation in Corbin, said seven bikes, and one adult tricycle, purchased in 2010 with a $2,500 grant from Walmart, will be made available to the public to use on the path.

The bikes were bought as part of a program called Bike Share, but were shelved due to lack of interest in the idea.

McBurney said the trail will run past Corbin High School and would be an ideal spot, once completed, to perhaps hold cross-country events or to be used for practice.

Day of Recognition: Above, former 82nd District Rep. Charlie Siler gets a pat on the back from House Speaker Greg Stumbo on Feb. 1 when he received the Vic Hellard Jr. Award.

Ky. General Assembly honors Siler with Vic Hellard Jr. Award

■ By Mark White

mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

During his more than 20 years of service in the Kentucky General Assembly, former 82nd District Rep. Charlie Siler spent his fair share of time helping to honor others.

On Feb. 1, it was Siler's turn to be recognized not only for his 22 years in the state legislature, but also for his lifetime of service to his state and country.

The Kentucky House of Representatives and the Kentucky Senate both recognized Siler as the recipient of the 2011 Vic Hellard Jr. Award for exemplary public service on Feb. 1, and adjourned that day in his honor.

"Certainly it's an honor. The people that make this award is the Legislative Research Commission. That is your own peers, the people that work right with you. They know you better than anyone," Siler said. "It was a tremendous honor to me to have those people that I worked with the last 22 years to think that much of me."

The Vic Hellard, Jr. Award was created in 1997 to recognize outstanding public service in the spirit Hellard brought to it: good humor, compassion, vision, a reverence for history but a questing thirst for our great shared future, an unwavering belief in the workings of democracy and in the innate American goodness of the people of Kentucky that Hellard expressed through his core conviction that public service is a citizen's highest civic calling, according to a resolution based in both chambers in Siler's honor.

Each year the award goes to someone, who embodies the values that Hellard brought to his long career, including a public servant of vision, who appreciates history while finding innovative approaches to hard problems, someone who champions the equality and dignity of all, nurtures the processes of a democratic society, and promotes public dialogue while educating and fostering civic engagement, and who approaches that work with commitment, caring, generosity, and humor, according to the resolutions.

"Charlie Siler embodies all of these criteria and attributes perfectly," the resolutions noted.

"Charlie served two notable stints in the Kentucky General Assembly before saying farewell in 2010 as one of Frankfort's most beloved and respected lawmakers. Charlie was a quietly passionate voice for the people of his beloved Laurel and Whitley counties, and a leader of vision and good humor whose tireless work made life and the future better for all Kentuckians, whether they knew his name or not."

Siler had a proud military career in the U.S. Army that traced the narrative arc of the last half of the 20th Century.

It began with the end of World War II and the beginning of the Cold War. He served in occupied Japan then in the Korean War. He was with the troops protecting Dr. Martin Luther King's Civil Rights march on Montgomery in the 1960's.

His military decorations include two awards of the Legion of Merit, a Meritorious Service Medal, a Bronze Star for Valor, an Army Commendation Medal, a Combat Infantry Badge, Master Paratrooper Wings, and as a member of the Infantry OCS Hall of Fame.

He represented the 82nd District as a Republican, first taking office in 1984. He was a voice for veterans and a voice for labor, but his greatest passion was education.

He voted for the Kentucky Education Reform Act of 1990 though he knew the tax increase to pay for it would likely result in his loss in the next election, and it did. Four years later, Charlie's district sent him back to Frankfort, where he served until 2010.

Federal judge will sentence Charles Fritts Thursday

■ By Dean Manning

dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

While his brothers have their day in federal court, Charles Fritts, will learn his fate as he is scheduled to be sentenced Thursday.

Fritts is scheduled to come before U.S. District Court Judge Gregory VanTathenhove at 3:30 p.m. for formal sentencing after pleading guilty in October to charges of distribution of a quantity of pills containing Oxycodone and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

According to the plea agreement, on Jan. 30, 2012, a cooperating witness for the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives was taken to Charles Fritts' home to purchase Oxycodone pills.

The witness, working with ATF Special

Agent Todd Tremaine made a series of controlled purchases of Oxycodone and Hydrocodone from Charles Fritts on at least three different occasions in Feb. 2011.

In an interview with Tremaine, two other cooperating witnesses stated they had been purchasing Oxycodone from Charles Fritts almost on a daily basis since October 2010.

Following his arrest, Charles Fritts admitted to Tremaine that even though he was a convicted felon, he had in his possession a shotgun. Charles Fritts is facing up to 20 years in prison and a fine of up to $1 million. Under federal law, the judge is not bound by the plea agreement and Fritts does not have the right to withdraw his guilty plea if he feels the sentence is too harsh.

There is no parole in the federal system, meaning Fritts will serve the entire sentence.

Doyle, Jerry Fritts trial starts Tuesday

■ By Dean Manning

dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

The last of the six people indicted in a federal drug distribution case with ties to former Whitley County Sheriff Lawrence Hodge are scheduled to go to trial Tuesday in U.S. District Court in London.

Court officials estimate the trial of Doyle Stanford "Stanboy" Fritts, 46 and Jerry Lee Fritts, 48 will take three days to complete.

The duo along with Charles F. Fritts, Jr., Nikita Nichole

Evans, James A. Meradith and Jason A. Kersey were indicted in April 2011 on charges of distribution of Oxycodone and Hydrocodone. A superseding indictment handed down in September accused Doyle Stanford Fritts, Jerry Lee Fritts and Merdaith of being convicted felons in possession of firearms.

The Fritts allegedly had a Chinese Model UCN X12, 12-gauge shotgun while Meradith had a Lion Arms, 12-gauge shotgun. A second superseding indictment handed down in January accused Doyle Fritts with trying to intimidate a witness in the case.

According to the criminal complaint filed in the case in March, a confidential informant reported purchasing several Oxycodone from Doyle Fritts. Another confidential informant stated that Doyle Fritts had told him that he would be willing to sell him a large quantity of pills if the quantity was, "large enough to make a good profit."

Williamsburg police and firefighters recovered the remains of two methamphetamine labs Monday afternoon.

He said the labs, which were in plastic bottles, had already been used to make meth, and the remains were discarded in the dumpster.

Liquor sales will not make W'burg a better town

To the Editor:

I'm 100 percent opposed to the sale of alcohol in Williamsburg.

Williamsburg is a nice town and I would like to see it remain a good place to live. If alcohol were to be served here it would be only at a very few restaurants, because Williamsburg is not big enough to attract big city restaurants, and only a very few people would profit from it. Sure we need jobs, but the type of jobs we need are more like Firestone or CSC.

Those who drink and drive always say they "I only had a few beers" or "a couple of drinks at dinner," when everyone knows even a few beers affect one's motor skills. I really don't want to be the one meeting them on the highway or a city street. Do you?

I'm told any special license fees and assessments levied because of alcohol sales can't be used for schools, road improvement, etc., but must be used only for the necessary extra law enforcement, supervision and administration caused by alcohol sales. Any other income from our existing occupation tax sales tax, restaurant tax, etc., could be more than eaten up by a single drunk driver who causes himself or someone else to become permanently disabled. Since most of us can't afford the cost of lengthy disability care, they would eventually end up supported by the taxpayers.

We know it wouldn't be the people who have profited who would step up and pay their bills. It would be us

It doesn't make sense to me to vote for alcohol sales in Williamsburg, in a restaurant or anywhere else

If you agree with me, vote NO on March 20.

Alcohol is a gateway to things that are worse

To the Editor:

A Gateway to what?

According to the academic literature on addition, alcohol is a gateway drug. That is, there seems to be a relationship between the consumption of alcohol and the exposure to and usage of other drugs, most of which are illegal. As a gateway, alcohol abuse can pull you into situations in which you shouldn't be in nor would anyone reasonably choose in the first place.

Proponents of the wet vote have characterized the special election as not being about alcohol. If it's not about alcohol, then what exactly is it about? These supporters have made general statements that a vote in favor of the referendum would be a vote for progress, a vote for prosperity. But what about our posterity; what kind of gateway are we opening up for our children? It is not my purpose to document the social evils linked to drug abuse or to recount Bible prohibitions against drunkenness, which there are many. Instead, I would like to focus your attention upon those we are charged with protecting and caring for: our children.

When Corbin voted in alcohol sales, did they expect that within ten years they would be voting on package sales? Should we expect the same pattern in our town? Our children face enough challenges in life and they don't need the added availability of alcohol. Moreover, think of the young people that are entrusted to us by their parents as they seek out an education in our University. I don't believe we are going to do them any favors if the door to alcohol is opened to them in town. It will be a temptation too difficult for many of them to resist. In the end, can we expect Williamsburg to become just another typical college town with the antics and wild nightlife often associated with them?

What positive arguments are advanced by those in favor of our city going wet? Their responses are typically three-fold. First, having alcohol by the drink will bring in good family restaurants. Second, it will bring in needed tax revenue and job opportunities into the city. Lastly, it is argued if people are going to drink and drive no matter what why not sell locally so they don't have far to travel. In response to these questions, if the sale of alcohol is the only thing keeping restaurants out of our town, what has kept away the non-alcoholic family restaurants like Golden Corral or Cracker Barrel? The second point about raising local revenue is misleading as the taxes on the sale of alcohol can only be used to fund the administration of Kentucky's Alcohol laws. Lastly, having a local option may in fact encourage risky behaviors. Knowing the streets and only having to travel a relatively short distance may embolden drivers to take a chance to drive home even though they are under the influence of alcohol.

In sum, let's have an honest discussion of where the sale of alcohol by the drink could lead us, I pray that after considering the risks to our precious city that on March 20th you will help to vote down the referendum to go

Queen of Corbin's Main Street set to celebrate anniversary

When Cottongim Drug closed its doors in January that left Maggie J's, now celebrating its 70th anniversary, as the oldest business on Corbin's Main Street.

My best memories go back to the early 1950's as an 11-year old youngster. Some of the clothing businesses, in addition to Maggie J's located on Main Street were Norvell's, Quality Shop, Joe The Tailor, The Vogue, Terrell-Reasor's, Belk-Simpson's, Burr's, Murphy's, Daniel's, Lovitt's, Penney's, Eversole's, and Holbert's.

Those were just the clothing stores located on Main Street in the downtown section of Corbin. And now Maggie J's is the sole survivor.

I wish we could turn back time and have those wonderful businesses again, but since we can't we are fortunate to have Maxine VonGruenigen here as the owner of Maggie J's.

Maxine has managed the store for 46 years. She took over the business from her aunt. Not only does Maxine run the business, she keeps the downtown spirit alive in Corbin.

She helps guide and direct downtown activities. She is one of the main reasons that Oktoberfest has been such a success. When its time to decorate the street or have a parade, Maxine has been there to lead and help.

Corbin has been made a better place to live and shop because of Maxine VonGruenigen. May she continue to have many more successful years at Maggie J's. Congratulations Maxine, you've blessed all our lives.

Don Estep
Commentary

Our circulation manager, for example, may have to cover for an advertising composing editor, and vice versa when one of the two is absent from work. Somehow we get by, especially during the vacation season, but never do we permit two staff members to be off at the same time except in an emergency.

With this in mind consider what has happen to us at the News Journal in our Corbin office in the past two weeks. Four of my eight staff members have been summoned to jury duty. That's right, FOUR! Two for circuit court in Whitley Count, one for circuit court in Laurel County and one for Federal Court.

We wholeheartedly believe in doing our civic duty, but taking four staff members off work could practically shut us down. Usually the presiding judge will listen to reason and excuse the perspective juror in situations like this.

Both me and my wife have served jury duty. In my case the presiding judge was observant enough to know that I was the least needed employee here so I remained on duty. In addition to me and my wife three others on our staff have previously been called to serve on the jury. Our office manager has served twice.

I'm sure that this is a coincidence, but what are the chances of one small business having its employees chosen that many times by our court system?

Bolton handled his brush with the law the right way

Whenever a public official runs afoul of the law, there are basically two ways they can handle the situation.

Let's assume, for the sake of this column, the official in question is guilty as charged. Innocent people should never plead guilty.

The first way is to accept responsibility. Ask for forgiveness from voters. Throw yourself on the mercy of the court and pay your fine or serve your time. Lesson learned. Never do it again. Very simple.

The second, all to common, way is to blame the police for picking on you, lash out in anger, deny responsibility, make excuses, then use your influence to poison the legal process and secure a sweetheart deal.

Knox County Constable Carl Bolton was facing those two options recently after being arrested for DUI. Bolton's constable district includes the Knox County portion of Corbin.

He should have never gotten behind the wheel after drinking. Bad call. Law enforcement officers, in particular, should know better.

That said, he's made all the right moves after the fact. He admitted he was wrong. Asked for forgiveness from family, friends and supporters. Quickly announced a plan to plead guilty to the charge and suffer all the penalties that go with that decision.

Good call.

People want to forgive other people. But they won't forgive arrogant, unrepentant jerks. Bolton didn't go that route.

Grabbing the reins of blame and responsibility firmly when something like this happens goes a long way toward fostering a certain amount of respect from people. It was a very honorable and manly way to handle things.

Carl Bolton walked right into the News Journal offices shortly after his arrest with a letter to the editor in hand apologizing for his actions. He patiently answered all of our reporter's questions about the incident - something I am sure was not really a pleasant thing for him to do. He faced the music with other media outlets as well. He didn't have to do any of that, but he did.

I believe in second chances. I think people should be given the opportunity to redeem themselves when they show the desire to do so. You never know when it is going to be you in that situation asking for other people to show you some mercy and leniency. We are all just one snap judgment away from a jail cell at any given moment. It can happen.

When and if it happens to me, I hope I can summon the courage to handle it the way Carl Bolton did.

W'burg City Council approves first reading of synthetic marijuana, bath salt bans

■ By Mark White
mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

The Williamsburg City Council took the first steps Monday night to ban the sale or possession of synthetic marijuana and synthetic cocaine.

During Monday's monthly meeting, the council held the first reading of an ordinance banning synthetic marijuana, which is being sold as pot-pourri or incense, and synthetic cocaine, which is being sold as bath salts, plant food or jewelry cleaner.

The council initiated the bans at the urging of Whitley District Judge Cathy Prewitt and Operation UNITE.

Prewitt said that she first started seeing synthetic marijuana about a year ago. Her first encounter with it wasn't someone in her juvenile drug court program, but an 18-year-old, who had gone to school high after smoking it.

"He was sick. He got scared he was so sick," she noted.

About six months ago, a teenager in the juvenile drug court program came to court with a racing heart rate from taking synthetic marijuana, and he has appointments with cardiologists because of it.

"For the first time since I have been drug court judge, I am scared. We don't know what the long term effects will be from using it," Prewitt said.

"Synthetic marijuana is a green leafy herb or substance, which in itself would probably be harmless, but they spray chemicals on it and who knows what mix of chemicals are being found."

Elissa Price, an official with Operation UNITE, said that synthetic marijuana is about 500 - 700 times more potent than marijuana. The drug is causing problems, such as heart attacks in 18 year olds and permanent psychosis.

Dr. John Huffman originally developed the drug in an effort to help cancer patients, but it never got past laboratory testing on rats.

"He has been quoted as saying anybody who uses this is an idiot. It is like playing Russian roulette," Price noted. "It is in our local high schools. It is on our college campuses."

Prewitt said that the normal drug tests used in the drug court program don't screen for synthetic marijuana, so a second test is needed, which costs about $35 each and only screens for a portion of the substances, which can be classified as synthetic marijuana.

The ordinances won't go into effect until after a second reading next month, and make possessing, selling or making the drugs a class 'A' misdemeanor, punishable by up to 12 months in jail.

Prewitt warned that this is a first step, and said the ordinance would be challenged in court.

One major problem with the drug is that when officials start banning it, makers will change the chemical composition to skirt the law.

Mayor Roddy Harrison agreed that the ordinance will probably have to be amended often, and added that an educational effort is needed to promote awareness about the problem particularly with parents.

In other business, the council:

- Unanimously approved a resolution authorizing Harrison to move forward with efforts to acquire the old Lion Uniform building, which is located at 205 13th Street. The building is valued at about $660,000.

Harrison said he heard rumors about six months ago that the Lapedes family was thinking about selling or donating the 82,000 square foot building, and began making inquiries.

He said the city has already lost one business because it didn't have a building available for them. The company came to town and liked nearly everything about the city.

"It has several possibilities. It gives us a chance to market it," Harrison added. "It was going to be sitting up there anyway. It might as well be ours."

- Discussed the status of an agreed order with state environmental officials to fix the city's wastewater treatment system.

Construction bids to replace the pump station at Briar Creek Park and other related work will be opened Feb. 29.

Harrison said that the engineer's estimate is that construction costs will be about $750,000. The total Briar Creek portion of the project is expected to cost about $1 million.

Corbin City Commission also banning synthetic marijuana

■ By Dean Manning
dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

The Corbin City Commission is following in the footsteps in the Laurel and McCracken counties, instituting a ban on the sale and possession of herbal incense, otherwise known as synthetic marijuana.

Following the first reading of the ordinance, which was drawn up by City Attorney Bob Hammons at the request of the commission, the commissioners voted unanimously to pass it, 4-0. Mayor Willard McBurney was absent from the meeting. Under the terms of the ordinance, it will be illegal within the Corbin City Limits to possess or sell "AM cannabinoids," "CP cannabinoids," "HU cannabinoids," or "JWH cannabinoids."

Whitley District Court Judge Cathy Prewitt, who runs the Whitley County Drug Court, spoke on behalf of the ordinance.

"Folks, its here," Prewitt said of the synthetic marijuana, which is sold at many local convenience stores. "We first saw it about a year ago."

Elissa Price, of Operation UNITE, told the commissioners that the packets are brightly colored and sold under the guise of incense or potpourri. They carry names such as Scooby Snax, Kush Pink, Head Trip, Wig Splitter, Kimax, Kush and Red Rum.

"You can get about four joints out of a package," Price told the commissioners, noting each packet sells for about $25.

Individuals in violation of the ordinance, may be charged with a misdemeanor crime. If convicted, the individual faces up to one year in jail and/or a fine of up to $500.

"Area law enforcement has promised that they will arrested individuals for this," Prewitt told the commissioners.

While the ordinance may slow down or stop of the local sale, Price said it will not be the end of the fight. While the Whitley County Fiscal Court is in the process of enacting its own ban, Price noted those who want to get their hands on the synthetic marijuana have numerous options. "This stuff follows the path of least resistance," Price said, noting it is not illegal in other neighboring counties or states.

Price added there is a push to institute a statewide ban, but local bans have proven more effective in limiting access.

"State level bans have been so broad, there is no bite to it," Price said.

The ordinance does not limit any of the prescription medications containing any of the banned substances that individuals are using under a doctor's care.

The commissioners noted they expect legal challenges to the ordinance and said they are prepared for that. In addition, because the ingredients are constantly changing in order to get around such laws, the commissioners they will regularly amend the ordinance to keep up with the changes. The commissioners are scheduled to meet in special session Friday for the second reading of the ordinance.

TRIAL: Defendants tied to Hodge

On March 4, 2011, Tremaine stated the cooperating witness made a phone call to Doyle Fritts asking about purchasing some Oxycodone pills. When the witness asked Doyle Fritts about the price, he could be heard asking a third party, "Jerry, what will you let him have 15 of them for at once?"

The informant reported meeting with Doyle Fritts to complete the transaction and that soon after Jerry Lee Fritts arrived to confirm the informant had paid $380 for the pills.

When it was discovered the informants had shorted Doyle Fritts $100, the informant contacted Doyle Fritts and arranged to meet in a store parking lot to pay the difference. Soon after the meeting with Doyle Fritts, Tremaine stated that video surveillance shows Doyle and Jerry Lee Fritts walking into the store.

Other confidential informants who made controlled drug buys at Charles Fritts' home reported seeing Hodge at the home and even witnessing Hodge give Charles Fritts a bottle of Oxycodone pills and asking him to sell the pills for him.

Doyle and Jerry Lee Fritts are each facing charges of conspiracy to distribute a quantity of pills containing Oxycodone and aiding and abetting the distribution of pills containing Oxycodone. In addition, Doyle Fritts has been charged with distribution of pills containing Oxycodone, being a convicted felon in possession of a firearm and intimidating a witness in the legal process.

The Fritts men are brothers who live next door to each other. Evans is Charles Fritts' daughter. She along with her boyfriend, James Meradith, lived at Charles Fritts' home.

Charles Fritts, Meradith, Evans and Kersey have all pleaded guilty.

‘Splashpad’ wanted for Corbin City Pool

Project will cost about $50,000, Sams says

■ By Trent Knuckles
tknuckles@corbinnewsjournal.com

The Corbin Tourism and Convention Commission is being asked to support a project that would expand the current city pool to include a “splashpad” for younger children.

Marlon Sams, Director of Corbin’s Department of Parks and Recreation, presented the idea for a splashpad to the board during it’s regular monthly meeting on Monday. The “splash pad,” a large, rectangular area filled with interesting and amusing water features, is planned to be constructed behind the city pool next to the Princess Vermillion McBurney Recreation Center.

“In the 13 years I’ve been there, the only major improvement we have done is we put a new liner in the pool,” Sams said. “I keep looking around us at places like W’burg who has the water park and Barbourville with a water park. I’d like to add this to what we have in a smaller capacity.”

Sams estimated the cost of equipment for the project would be about $50,000. Most of the labor, he said, would be done by city workers. Sams did not officially ask the Tourism Commission for any financial commitment, saying the project is still in its early stages. There are several major companies that market and sell splashpad equipment, and he said he is currently securing bids from those companies to see who can provide the best product for the best price.

Board members seemed generally supportive of the idea. Alan Onkst, a member, said London has a splashpad already, and added that he’s also seen one in Valparaiso, Ind. that is very popular with local residents there.

Sams said the project is just one part of a larger plan to add features to the recreation center. He is also looking into the possibility of constructing a miniature golf course on the site.

While no formal action was taken on the proposal, Tourism members did hear other requests for funding for several other events.

D.L. Lynch, Owner of Forest Bowling Lanes, requested $4,000 to help offset the cost of hosting the Kentucky Youth Bowling Association Tournament scheduled to take place during the entire month of April. Lynch said it is the first time for Corbin to host the event.

The money, he said, would be used to purchase a special towel for participants, along with entertainment and trophies.

The board gave Lynch $6,000 last year to help host a statewide bowling tournament for adult women - $4,500 more than was actually budgeted for the event by the Commission.

Commission members took the request under advisement.

Skip Walden, a member of the Whitley County Tourism Commission, asked the board for $3,300 to help sponsor a fishing tournament at Laurel Lake, likely to take place next year. He said the tournament would have a $20,000 purse and would draw 200 to 250 boats.

“For that kind of money ... they will come in and pre-fish the lake for two or three days and spend $200 to $250 a day,” Walden said.

Walden proposed that the counties three tourism boards pool money together in order to offer $10,000 to tournament organizers to lure the tournament to Laurel Lake instead of it being held on Lake Cumberland in Somerset.

The board took the funding request under advisement.

In other business, the board:

- Approved a request for $25,000 from Southern Kentucky Chamber of Commerce Director Bruce Carpenter to help pay for stage, lighting and sound costs association with the NIBROC Festival in August. This year will mark the 60th anniversary of NIBROC.

- Approved a request from the Corbin Garden Club and the Cumberland Falls Garden Club to use the Tourism meeting rooms for a four-district meeting of garden clubs on Oct. 27.

Donations being accepted in Hamilton’s memory

■ By Trent Knuckles
tknuckles@corbinnewsjournal.com

Donations are being accepted in honor of Fine Arts Association of Southeastern Kentucky Founder Betty Hamilton, and officers with the group say funds will be used to continue the mission and vision, which has guided the group for 50 years.

Betty C. Hamilton died at her home at the age of 80 last December.

Hamilton founded the Fine Arts Association of Southeastern Kentucky, Inc. in 1961. Originally from Louisville, Hamilton and her husband settled in Corbin over 50 years ago and missed some of the classical entertainment not traditionally available in smaller, more rural areas.

The Fine Arts Association is celebrating its 50th Anniversary season this year and has had record attendance at its events, officials with the organization say.

The success is part of the foundation Hamilton laid decades ago.

“Betty loved Corbin and this area and she wanted people here to be able to enjoy the fine arts in the same way those who live in the big cities do,” said Betty Comer, Program Director for the Fine Arts Association. “We are celebrating our 50th year now and it has been a smashing success. Any money we raise in honor of Betty Hamilton will be used to continue our excellent concert series.”

The Fine Arts Association sponsors a season of between seven and nine shows annually featuring artists of all genres - dance, theater, classical music, folk traditions, voice, etc.

The non-profit organization hosts events in Corbin, London, Barbourville and Williamsburg. Affordable subscriptions to each season are sold as a way to make the highly cultured performances available and accessible to the general public. The organization also plans special school events so that children, free of charge, can experience the fine arts.

The Fine Arts Association is currently planning its 51st Concert Series. Performances by the Five Browns on March 8 and the Lexington Philharmonic Orchestra on April 28 remain on the current concert schedule.

Anyone interested in tickets to Fine Arts events or a season subscription is encouraged to call 606-528-1354.

If you are interested in donating to the Fine Arts Association in memory of Betty Hamilton you can send a check to Fine Arts Association of Southeastern Kentucky, Inc. care of Betty Comer at P.O. Box 408, Corbin, KY, 40702. Donations can also be made in person at Gibson’s Music on Main Street in Corbin.

In the ear (ite) and canal hearing aids

A hearing loop is a thin strand of copper wire radiating electromagnetic signals that can be picked up by a tiny receiver already built into most hearing aids and cochlear implants. When the receiver is turned on, the hearing aid receives only the sounds coming directly from a microphone, not the background cacophony.

The basic technology, called an induction loop, has been around for decades as a means of relaying signals from a telephone to a tiny receiver called a telecoil, or t-coil, that can be attached to a hearing aid.

People in the United States have been slow to adopt the technology because telecoils were traditionally sold as an optional accessory, at an extra cost of about $50, instead of being included automatically with a hearing aid. But today telecoils are built into two-thirds of the hearing aids on the market as well as in all cochlear implants, so there is a growing number of people able to benefit from loops.

Hearing loop systems are more complicated to install than the assistive-hearing systems commonly used in theaters and churches, which beam infrared or FM signals to special headsets or neck loops that must be borrowed from the hail. The loops are typically installed on the floor around the periphery of a room. Installing a loop in an auditorium typically costs $10 to $25 per seat, an initial investment that discourages some facility managers. But advocates for the loops argue that the cost per user is lower over the long run.

In it for the long haul: Above, Maxine Von Gruenigen has owned Maggie J's Dress Shop for the past 46 years. Below, Von Gruenigen looks over old photos chronicling the history of the store on a table near the entrance. She put out the photos for customers to peruse. Bottom, the original Maggie J's at it's first location on Main Street.

From the front page

downtown Corbin on Feb. 19, 1942 next to what is now Freeman and Childers Law Offices. It contained a women's clothing store and adjacent shoe shop and was more than double it's current size.

The store was founded by Von Gruenigen's aunt, Maggie J. Wyrick. Her husband, Roy, ran the shoe store.

Roy died in his 40s, so Wyrick and Von Gruenigen were left to run the business. Immediately, they ran into struggles.

"I remember we went to St. Louis to buy shoes, Maggie J. and I did, and when we got there, they wouldn't sell them to women," Von Gruenigen said. "They said you had to have a man to run the shoe store."

"Here we were with this store which is twice to three times bigger than what I've got now, and we had no stock to put in it."

Von Gruenigen said she and Maggie J. worked through any roadblocks to build a solid customer base and profitable business.

Wyrick was quite a bit older than Von Gruenigen. When Wyrick had to have back surgery and was away from the store for about a year, Von Gruenigen was forced to take over.

"She told me I would just have to run the store. I said, 'Lord have mercy! I can't run this store.' I was just 26-years-old," Von Gruenigen said. "She told me I could do it and that she would give me a budget. I took it and did it. That's kind of the way I came into the store. It was real on-job-training."

Maggie J. lost interest in the store years later. She never had any children, so offered it to her niece who, at first, declined.

"I had been through a lot and didn't know what I was doing," Von Gruenigen said. "I went home and stayed a week. My son went to camp and the last day of that week I decided, boy I don't want to be at home like this. I came back down there and I said don't sell that store. I've changed my mine. I want it."

After 24 years, Maggie J was out and Von Gruenigen took over as owner. Forty-six years later she is still the face of the business, and it's sole proprietor.

"I've worked 67 straight Christmas Eves at this store and never missed," Von Gruenigen said. "I have never missed a NIBROC parade ... I have never missed any of it."

The store moved to its currently location - next to Gibson's Music - when Von Gruenigen realized its previous location was too large.

Von Gruenigen said she hasn't missed out on other things in life simply because she owns the store. She and her husband, Eldred, have traveled to all 50 U.S. States, and have taken five trips across the Atlantic Ocean, including three to Switzerland where her husband's family originated.

"I've been to the beach 42 years of our married life," Von Gruenigen said. "We've done it all. I don't feel like I've missed anything. I've had a really good life. I've been really blessed."

During her stint as owner, Maggie J's has had only six employees Von Gruenigen said. Two worked there for 24 years and two worked 14.

Part of the reason her employees stay so long, she said, is because working at the store is a fun, family-like experience.

"I don't feel like I'm above anybody or anything. I don't really do much bossing," Von Gruenigen said. "We have a good time with it. We don't make hard work out of it ... I think of my employees as family. We work together and we play together."

Von Gruenigen said she never changed the name of the store to "Maxine's" or something similar out of respect to her aunt, who let her have the business, and because it gives her a sense that she is not really the owner which makes the pressure or running a store less prevalent.

Maggie J's sells high-end women's clothing. While a down economy has hurt in recent years, Von Gruenigen said it still "pays the bills," and that the business has many loyal customers.

To celebrate its 70th anniversary, Maggie J's is going to offer up to 70 percent discounts on some merchandise. Also, anyone that makes a purchase on Friday or Saturday will get to draw from a special discount tree and will be able to take an additional $10 to $25 off the total.

Also, Von Gruenigen said she would be giving away 50 scarves to customers during the two-day event.

MANAGER: Phillips says Salmons can be Corbin's link to other communities

From the front page

Within the next year, Salmons said he will be working on compiling and continually updating the calendar of events, completing the master plan for downtown redevelopment and moving into the public meeting phase with it and developing a small business incubator.

"I think it is very exciting," Salmons said of the projects.

In addition, Salmons will be working with other local groups including Corbin Tourism Commission, Corbin Chamber of Commerce and others.

Phillips said Corbin and the tri-county area are linked together in so many ways and Salmons can be Corbin's link to the other communities to benefit everyone.

"This is a region wide community," Phillips said. The Main Street Manager position was full-time held by Sharea Myers until June 2010 when the commissions made it a part-time position and cut the department's operating budget from $158,601 to $29,877 in an effort to help balance the city's budget. Then City Manager Bill Ed Cannon defended the move in the wake of a number of protests, noting the position was less important to the city and other services as police, fire, public works or parks and recreation.

In April, Myers resigned from the position for what Cannon called, "personal reasons."

Survey to collect info on broadband use

Designed to identify where Internet access is lagging, promote economic development

■ Staff Report
for the News Journal

The Commonwealth Office of Broadband Outreach and Development (OBOD) and the Kentucky Council of Area Development Districts (KCADD) are asking businesses and citizens to participate in a survey that will collect information on broadband use as part of the Broadband KY initiative to help increase internet utilization in the daily lives of Kentuckians.

“Broadband services are critical to the advancement of our state in education, economic development and job creation,” said Lori H. Flanery, secretary of the Finance and Administration Cabinet. “The Broadband KY initiative is working to help businesses and citizens take full advantage of existing broadband capabilities and identify areas of greatest need for broadband expansion in homes, schools and commerce.”

The public survey will be available online Feb. 7 to March 8, 2012, at <http://broadband.ky.gov>. More than 100,000 businesses, non-profit and health organizations, local governments and households in Kentucky will receive email messages this week requesting their participation.

The survey is designed to identify where internet access is not being fully utilized as an educational or business tool, and to target areas with limited or no broadband availability in the state. The results will help build a strategic plan to promote the internet as an economic development asset in all aspects of daily life.

In 2010, Kentucky joined a nationwide effort to identify and map broadband coverage and access. Gov. Steve Beshear created OBOD in the Finance and Administration Cabinet to facilitate this critical step toward expanding broadband internet access, promoting a better understanding of the many uses and benefits of the Internet and spurring economic growth.

OBOD conducted a similar online survey in 2010 to collect data on home broadband accessibility.

“This is a unique opportunity for public to tell us about the obstacles they face in using Broadband internet,” said Brian Kiser, executive director of OBOD. “This program has been developed to help get all Kentuckians online and globally engaged.”

The Commonwealth has received more than $5.3 million in grants for broadband mapping and outreach programs, including Broadband KY, from the federal American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA), State Broadband Data and Development (SBDD) grant program.

OBOD launched a similar online survey in 2010 to learn more about where broadband is available in Kentucky.

This second survey will focus on who is using broadband and how they are using it in their daily activities. It is designed to identify opportunities across the state where broadband is underused or not valued as an educational and economical tool.

“We need Kentucky to provide a voice so that we can begin deconstructing barriers and working to promote a healthy, vibrant, advanced Kentucky,” said Abby Piper, director of communications and special projects for KCADD. “This progressive program will reach all corners of the state, and we are sincere about making changes for a better Kentucky.”

Special events announced for 2012 season at Corbin Speedway

Corbin Speedway this week announced two special events to be added to their regular program in the month of April.

Keith Page, general manager of the speedway, said lawn mower races will be conducted on a specially-prepared dirt track inside the paved quarter-mile oval on Saturday evening, April 7, and a demolition derby will be added to the program in the following weekend.

“If you’ve got an old riding mower at home,” Page said, “you might as well bring it to the track and see how fast you can go around our inside dirt track. We won’t have any grass to mow, but we’ll see how fast your mower runs and how it handles. We can’t make it real easy for the competitors, so there just may be a few obstacles in your way. Try it if you dare.”

He added that engines on the mowers must be stock, but the mower races will be $10 per mower, and the winner will receive $100 and a trophy.

“If we have more than ten racers, we’ll have more than one race,” Page explained, “but either way each winner will receive $100 and a trophy.”

For the demolition derby, Page said, all prospective entrants should contact him by e-mail at his address listed on the track’s website, or by phone. His number is also listed on the website.

“Cash prizes will depend on the number of cars participating,” he added, “but we have talked to a number of prospective entrants in Tennessee, and interest is already high. I also have heard that the boys in the Red Boiling Springs area are experts at this, and pretty hard to beat.”

All cash generated by the demolition derby teams in the form of entry fees and pit pass fees will be part of the purse, Page noted, the same as with Corbin Speedway’s regular competitors.

The general manager said a number of other special events are being planned for the 2012 season.

“We’ll have something in May, but we’re not ready to announce it yet,” he commented. “June - definitely not yet. August - it’ll be hot, but it’ll be worth the wait. September - we won’t let things cool down. October - things could get downright haunting.”

The track’s website, www.corbinspeedway.com, contains the complete schedule, and addition information on upcoming events is also posted on the site, as well as on the Corbin Speedway Facebook page.

Advice on planning your next vacation

The calendar says it’s still winter, but many of us are dreaming of spring break or summer excursions. Have you been surfing the Internet for that next great trip idea or deal?

Travel doesn’t have to break the bank, say personal financial planning experts. There are ways to save while having an adventure and creating memories. Here are some ideas to make travel planning easier and spending your hard-earned dollars right where you want them.

Budget basics. What can you afford? And when can you afford it? After your monthly expenses are paid, what can you put towards your vacation dreams? Can you book now or do you need to save and go next year? Jumpstart a travel fund by skipping gourmet coffee and meals out. Once you know where you’re going, create a spending plan for your trip. How much will you need per person, per day? Factor in food, lodging, transportation, tips and souvenirs.

Don’t forget discounts. An organization you already belong to may offer discounts on airfare, rental cars, accommodations, or admission to museums and other sites. AARP, AAA or various frequent flier memberships are just a few examples.

Lighten up. Your fashion consciousness may want to bring seven pairs of shoes, but if you over-pack for an airline flight, you may encounter overweight baggage charges or fees for an additional bag. Know the weight restrictions and baggage allowances before you head to the airport.

Consider driving to your destination. Often driving saves you money on transportation (especially when traveling with a family). Driving may also negate the necessity of a car rental and eliminates worries about overweight luggage charges. You may be surprised about how many magical destinations are close at hand. For longer trips you may be able to experience more of the country scenery that you miss when you fly. And as an added advantage; driving from home saves you from extended waiting time at the airports.

To tour or not to tour? Some people like to travel in a group; others like to plan their own trip. If you think you’d like to join a tour, find out what’s included and what isn’t. Airfare? Ground transportation? Tipping? Meals? You’ll need to budget for non-inclusive items.

Power up. Pack any extra batteries you might need, especially if you’re heading overseas. Buying batteries in a foreign country is shockingly expensive.

Stop the sniffles. Bring your own over-the-counter medicines for a cold or headache so you won’t be grousing in the wallet for medicine you’re unfamiliar with. And of course, don’t forget any prescription meds you’ll need. If you are even able to get your prescription filled, it might be very expensive at an out-of-network pharmacy.

Be watchful. Guard your valuables and money carefully. Consider using a money belt or wearing a neck pouch. Know how to cancel your credit cards in case they’re stolen or the numbers compromised.

Money matters. For international trips, understand exchange rates and tipping customs for each country on your itinerary. ATMs may offer a better exchange rate over booths or even banks. Compare before you change money. The U.S. is one of the few countries where leaving a restaurant tip is customary. Don’t over-tip if it’s not necessary. Also, research any fees your credit card company may charge for foreign transactions.

Be flexible. You may have your heart set on leaving for your trip on Friday right after work, but you may find better airfares on Tuesday, Wednesday or Saturday. Booking a flight that makes a stop may not materially increase your travel time and may offer savings as well. Departing from a different airport an hour away could save hundreds on your airfare. Also consider traveling during the shoulder season – a location’s off-peak travel time.

Consider travel insurance. Should you get it? Basically it comes down to your level of risk aversion. Put your mind at ease by doing some research and determining what makes sense for you.

The good news is that making online reservations with a credit card may entitle you to some basic insurance, covering the cost of a canceled flight or car rental. Check into what your credit card offers.

Bon voyage

What’s left on your trip planning agenda? Nothing but having the time of your life. You’ve saved, budgeted and planned so now it’s time to relax and enjoy.

Take lots of pictures.

ALCOHOL: City will be allowed three package stores

From the front page

short.

In 2003, Corbin voters approved the limited sale of alcohol by the drink, only in qualifying restaurants. That measure won by a more comfortable 212-vote margin with less organized and galvanized resistance.

Kraus said he feels that some of the opposition to package sales may have actually encouraged supporters of the idea to go to the polls.

“I think some of the no group’s tactics galvanized people to vote for this. People are tired of losing their rights in life,” Kraus said. “Why is it against the law to buy alcohol in this city when it is something that is totally legal? I think people are tired of that. I think what they did caused a lot of people to get out and vote for it.”

Despite the rain, officials said turnout at the nine polling places in Whitley and Knox counties was brisk, considering the alcohol question was the only race on the ballot.

The measure allows Corbin to issue three licenses to sell package liquor of any time.

An unlimited number of licenses may be issued to grocery stores, convenient stores and the like for the sale of beer.

In addition, the current restrictions on the sale of alcohol at restaurants, which requires 70 percent of gross receipts to come from the sale of food, will drop to 50 percent if the city approves an economic emergency ordinance.

The measure passed by 66 votes in Whitley County where 1,382 votes were cast and 32 votes in Knox County where 294 votes were cast.

Three precincts voted against the measure, South Ward and Mastertown in Whitley County and E105 in Knox County, which is made up of residents in Cobblestone Estates.

Whitley County Clerk Kay Schwartz reported one minor issue dealing with a campaign sign too close to the polling place at Corbin Middle School.

Schwartz said Whitley County Sheriff Colan Harrell and Corbin Police Officer James Miller responded to the complaint.

“They measured the distance and found that the sign was 355 feet from the polling place,” Schwartz said noting that is permissible under Kentucky Law, which prohibits campaigning and campaign signs within 300 feet of a polling place.

Corbin City Commissioner Ed Tye said the next step in the process is for an ordinance to be drawn up and approved by the commission. Tye said the commissioners have 60 days to do so.

Once the totals are certified, the commission can take action of the results of the referendum. According to Kentucky law, the issue cannot be voted on again in Corbin for at least three years.

“ I think some of the no group’s tactics galvanized people to vote for this. People are tired of losing their rights in life ...”

FORCHT: Tax could be made more attractive to business investors

From the front page

laws,” Forcht said. “There are just too many and they are too confusing ... Even if you are wanting to pay them the way they should be paid, it is just too confusing. It shouldn’t be that way.”

Forcht noted that while Kentucky is “not at the bottom or the top” when it comes to its tax structure’s attractiveness to businesses, there are many issues with the tax code that could drive away potential business investment in the state. She points to Tennessee, which has no corporate income tax, as an example of a state that is more appealing to small and large business owners.

Members of the commission have been provided with a list of every tax collected by the state of Kentucky. Also, members have been given a similar list of all the taxes states that border Kentucky collect.

Forcht said the Commission would look at the state’s tax structure as it relates to both businesses and individuals. Though she comes in with few preconceived notions about current tax law, Forcht said simplification of the system is paramount.

“Very few people anymore can fill out their own tax return,” Forcht said. “I think we need to do away with some taxes ... make things a little easier.”

She said the corporate income tax is something that deserves a serious look. Also, property taxes on vehicles is another sticking point.

“Right now in Kentucky, people basically have to rebuy their car every year and pay taxes on it,” Forcht said, pointing out that the tax has encouraged people to license their vehicles in other states.

In general, she said she favors “ad valorem” or pay-as-you-go taxes over income taxes - things like sales tax, cell phone usage tax, cable and satellite television, etc.

“Taxes, by the nature of the beast, is not a fun thing,” Forcht said. “We all have something else we’d rather do with that money, but the state needs money to run and it has to come from somewhere. We want to come up with the most palatable way to pay it. Hopefully, we will come up with something that will make some sense.”

In the past, Forcht said the current tax has survived, with some modifications, because economic times were relatively robust. Now, there is more of a premium on government efficiency.

“Our economy is not growing like it once was and probably won’t ... We need to learn to live with what we can legitimately and fairly get out of people,” Forcht said.

In 2011, the National Tax Foundation ranked Kentucky 19th best in the nation both in its business climate and in the growth rate of new jobs. Another recent report ranked Kentucky eighth in the nation for taxes and regulations, and 12th for job growth.

The five guiding principals of the Commission will be: fairness, competitiveness, simplicity and compliance, elasticity and adequacy.

Forcht said the Commission had an information meeting last Friday and will begin regular meetings it the near future. It will hold six public meetings and forums over the summer to seek input from citizens. The group should tentatively have recommendations by November. Beshear has vowed not to propose any tax code changes until after this year’s General Election.

The Commission’s recommendations are advisory only and may be accepted wholly or in part, or not at all.

Forcht said she believes the formation of the group is not politically motivated and that’s it work will be given serious consideration by the governor when changes are proposed.

Forcht is President and CEO of Forcht Insurance Agency. She also serves on the Board of Directors for the Kentucky Center for the Performing Arts, Kentucky Historical Society and the Sanders-Brown Center on Aging. She also serves on the state’s History Property Advisory Commission. She is the wife of Forcht Group of Kentucky Founder and CEO Terry Forcht.

Whitley Grand Jury indicts jail inmate for sodomizing fellow prisoner in Jan.

■ By Mark White
mwhite@corbinnewsjournal.com

A Whitley County Grand Jury handed down rape or sex abuse related charges against four people Monday morning in Whitley Circuit Court, including an indictment against a former Whitley County Detention Center inmate, who is accused of sodomizing another inmate.

The grand jury indicted David Worley, 26, for first-degree sodomy, which carries a possible sentence of up to 20 years in prison, said Commonwealth's Attorney Allen Trimble.

On Jan. 2, Worley allegedly engaged in deviate sexual intercourse with an adult male through the use of forcible compulsion, according to his indictment.

Worley allegedly made the victim undress in the shower and attempted to insert a foreign object or sexual organ into the anus of the victim, according to the warrant.

Whitley County Jailer Ken Mobley said that after the victim reported the assault to jail staff, they immediately contacted the Kentucky State Post in London, and got a detective to investigate.

"After he (the victim) reported it to us, we took him to the hospital, which did an assault exam on him," Mobley said.

The grand jury also charged David Mayes, 19, of Corbin, with first-degree sexual abuse and two counts of first-degree criminal abuse.

On July 27, 2010, Mayes allegedly had sexual contact with a female less than 12 years of age and he twice intentionally abused an infant child under the age of 12 placing the child in a situation where it may have caused the boy serious physical injury or death.

The grand jury charged the victim's mother, Tonya Trosper, 33, with two counts of first-degree criminal abuse in the case.

According to her indictment, on July 27, 2010, Trosper allegedly intentionally permitted an infant child under the age of 12 to be subjected to criminal abuse by Mayes.

If convicted, Mayes could face up to 20 years in prison on the sex abuse charge.

In addition, the grand jury charged James Setser, 27, with third-degree rape and with being a first-degree persistent felony offender.

On May 7, Setser allegedly engaged in sexual intercourse with a person incapble of consent because she was mentally challenged, according to his indictment.

Setser has prior convictions in Knox County for second-degree trafficking in a controlled substance and theft by unlawful taking.

If convicted, Setser faces up to five years in prison.

BURGLARY: Ringleader held in jail on no bond electronics and guns.

Monday morning, a Whitley County Grand Jury handed down six separate indictments against Larry Brandon Shelton, 28, who police say is the ring leader of the group.

The grand jury also handed down two indictments Monday against Timothy E. Taylor, 33; two indictments against Jason Lafountain, 23; and one against Eric Shelton, 23, who is Larry Shelton's cousin.

Monday's indictments centered only on some Whitley County Sheriff's Department investigations, and not those by other agencies, and centered on break-ins in Whitley County that took place between Sept. 15 and Nov. 22.

Police believe the burglary ring concentrated primarily on Whitley and Laurel counties, but was also responsible for break-ins as far away as Winchester in Clark County.

According to the indictments, the following thefts took place:

- Sept. 15, Larry Shelton and Lafountain are charged with second-degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking over $500 but less than $10,000 for allegedly taking tools, cash and jewelry belonging to Jesse Jones.

- Oct. 17, Eric Shelton allegedly received stolen property over $500 but less than $10,000 by having in his possession jewelry, which had been stolen from Marie Smith that was valued at over $500.

- On Oct. 19, Larry Shelton and Taylor are charged with second-degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking over $500 but less than $10,000 for allegedly taking jewelry from Charlotte McVey's residence.

- On Oct. 19, Larry Shelton and Lafountain are charged with second-degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking under $500 for allegedly taking a drill and drill press from Maurice Saylor's residence.

- On Oct. 27, Larry Shelton and Taylor are charged with second-degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking over $10,000 for allegedly taking jewelry and cash from Darrell and Jane Wages residence.

- On Nov. 1, Larry Shelton is charged with second-degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking over $500 but less than $10,000 for allegedly taking jewelry and cash belonging to Susan Stephens.

- On Nov. 22, Larry Shelton is charged with second-degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking over $10,000 for allegedly taking silverware belonging to Brauntin Smith.

In all six indictments, Larry Shelton is also charged with being a first-degree persistent felony offender. On June 2, 2010, he was convicted in Woodford Circuit Court for first-degree criminal mischief. On March 19, 2010, he was convicted in Whitley Circuit Court of first-degree fleeing or evading police and receiving stolen property over $300.

Taylor is facing two counts of being a first-degree persistent felony offender for prior felony convictions in Woodford, Whitley and Franklin circuit courts.

Lafountain is also facing two counts of being a first-degree persistent felony offender with prior felony convictions in Laurel and Whitley circuit courts.

Circuit Judge Dan Ballou ordered Larry Shelton, Taylor and Lafountain to be held without bond Monday. He ordered that Eric Shelton's bond remain the same, which had been set at $50,000 cash in Whitley District Court.

Local police arrested Larry and Eric Shelton along with two other men, Josh Croley, 25, and Daniel Bradenburg, 28, both of Williamsburg, between Feb. 3-4.

Police say Larry Brandon Shelton, Eric Shelton and Croley were responsible for the burglary at Kelly Bryant's home on Feb. 1 where about $45,000 worth of jewelry was taken.

Whitley County Sheriff's Deputy Shawn Jackson contends that Brandenburg, an alleged local drug dealer, was in possession of some of the stolen jewelry while much of the other jewelry taken from Bryant's home was found at two local pawn shops - Mardis Pawn in London and Diamond Gem's Jewelry and Pawn in Williamsburg.

Monday afternoon, Larry Shelton, Croley and Brandenburg waived their rights to preliminary hearings in their cases.

Whitley District Judge Cathy Prewitt ordered them to report to circuit court on March 12 to see if they have been indicted.

Eric Shelton's preliminary hearings were postponed until Feb. 27.

Brandenburg and Croley are being held in the Whitley County Detention Center in lieu of $50,000 cash bonds as of press time Tuesday.

If it weren't for bad luck

I'd have no luck at all.
It's been like that all week. A repair truck with a company logo on its side has been a common sight in front of my house every day this week.
It all began last Monday when my television had been on the fritz for three days. I had battled a scrambled screen that went to black about 5 minutes after a program started. I could never see the end of some of my favorite shows. And it was beginning to hit on my last nerve. So the tech serviceman came out and twisted some wires and fixed the problem.
But that was only the beginning of my troubles. The next day the telephone went out. Same scenario as the day before. "Will you be at home between 3 and 5 p.m." was the reply I got when I called tech support. Oh, yes, I thought as I grumbled goodbye. Never mind that his "between 3 and 5 p.m." meant 5 o'clock on the dot while I was trying to get supper. Oh, well ya takes what you can get.
With a sigh that would be the end of these aggravations, I looked forward to Wednesday as a day free of disruptions. But the biggie, the most devastating and depressing catastrophe that can occur in a household, was lying in wait. I had a clogged drain, and I do mean clogged. All the water I was using was draining into my bathtub. I couldn't use the washer, wash dishes, flush the toilet... my house smelled like a sewer. I used a whole bottle of Renuzit, and found their TV ads were deceptive. And by this time, I was wearing the cleanest of my dirty clothes.

A simple call to the utilities company was the answer to my prayer. They sent out 4 big strapping men (angels) who saved me from losing my sanity. In just a few minutes, they cleared the drain as though it were nothing to them. I offered them the deed to my house as well as my next grandchild as they packed up their gear and drove away.
This morning as I sat down to write this column, my computer flickered and died. After adjusting a dozen or so wires, I soon realized the power in the whole house had gone off. After about 2 hours with no heat, I was beginning to shiver under the throw I had wrapped around my body.. As I considered my options, I heard the blessed sound of the heat coming on.
Now I have to reset all the digital clocks in the house.
If this goes on much longer, I may have an exorcist come in and exorcise the demons stalking my house. I'm not a believer in the paranormal but I'm beginning to get paranoid. I used to be a skeptic, but now, not so much.

crossed that Eddie might be able to furnish me with a picture of some of my family. He also mentioned that his grandparents were once featured in "Renfro Revelations". I'm planning to search every copy of that little magazine that our historical society has.

It seems as I've used the term "fate" in several of my last columns. Last week I included my memories of Cleda Faye (Lawson) Carter and someone later mentioned that they had read my tribute to her. Just after hearing that word concerning tributes, I read a tribute written by Simon Renfro regarding his father. I think it's appropriate that I share with you the tribute that S. L. Renfro paid to his father.

Mr. Renfro wrote: "Every boy believes he has a great dad, and why shouldn't he? With the right home training, boys just think their dads are tops among men. They try to step into their tracks and sometimes they actually do. Many times when we grow up to manhood we had the same opinion, more often we have more respect for Dad's wisdom. While Dad is always a great fellow, it may take a few extra years to observe Dad's life and council to prove to us he was a much wiser man than we first thought he was.

My Dad was a great fellow. He believed in us boys. He believed in people, sometimes too much for his financial good. Dad never got any education, when he grew up it was not like it is now, he just took his out in work. He was physically, mentally and spiritually qualified. I don't believe I ever saw anyone who loved work as he did. Dad and I had many things in common, but we may differ more on work than any other.

Dad went to church, on Saturday too. It mattered not the weather, weeds, grass or what not. He just laid things down and took his place at the Saturday meeting, right up in the Amen corner. After the service Dad would ask the preacher home with us for dinner, many times they would accept Dad's invitation. Preachers have a peculiar way of sensing the direction of hams, hens, honey, hot biscuits and other good things to eat. Dad was a good farmer and had lots of good food and mother knew how to cook and the table was loaded. When the preacher found this out he came more often. I can't remember when preachers were not regular visitors in our home.

Dad never made much

Miss Redbud Trails applications now being accepted thru March

TOUR Southern and Eastern Kentucky (TOUR SEKY) is excited to announce the seventh (7th) annual Miss Redbud Trails Pageant. Infants thru sophomores will compete for titles ranging from Tiny Miss Redbud Trails to Redbud Trails Princess. Juniors and seniors are invited to compete for the title of Miss Redbud Trails.

The pageant is open to participants in TOUR's 47 county service area. The pageant will be held March 17, 2012 on the Union College Campus, at Conway Boatman Chapel, Barbourville, Ky. (for complete county list visit www.tourseky.com)

Each contestant competing for the title of Miss Redbud Trails will receive prizes including a $500.00 scholarship from Union College, "Kentucky's First College in the Mountains." The chosen Queen will receive a $10,000.00 scholarship to Union College, along with a sash, crown and other gifts.

Miss Redbud Trails serves as a spokesperson and ambassador for TOUR SEKY and the Redbud Trails program. The Queen will also be featured in tourism marketing materials and will be showcased in area parades and festivals.

The Redbud Trails Program, initiated in 2004 by Congressman Hal Rogers, was established to encourage and promote tourism in Southern and Eastern Kentucky by showcasing the natural beauty of the area, therefore kicking off the tourism season in early spring. Southern and eastern Kentuckians have planted more than 500,000 redbuds since the program began.

Pageant information and applications can be found at www.tourseky.com or www.redbudfestky.com. The deadline to apply is March 1, 2012. For more information about the Redbud Trails Pageant, please contact Michelle Allen at 606-677-6142 or mallen@tourseky.com.

TOUR SEKY is an award winning initiative of Congressman Hal Rogers. The organization's mission is to educate, expand, develop and market the existing and potential tourism industry throughout southern and eastern Kentucky, while contributing to the economic, cultural growth, health and awareness, and overall quality of life of the region. For additional information about TOUR SEKY visit www.tourseky.com, or call 606-677-6093.

He did not beat the drums and march with the loud mouthed. He stood back where the strong reinforcements are found. He never was profane. He used no vulgar words. He was clean in words, pure in mind, and noble of soul. He would not permit profane, vulgar words to be spoken in his home. I'm told he once stopped a vulgar conversation on the part of some visiting neighbor by simply saying, "I do not allow this in my home."

Dad was a real man in body, soul, and spirit. I, too, like Dad, am proud of the name. It will be and has always been my desire to live up to all the glory of the past. To me Dad will be one of the great men of all ages."

The above tribute is found in "Renfro Revelations" Volume 6 dated November/December 1949. If you enjoy the information I share from these small magazines, you can drop by the Whitley County Historical & Genealogical Society to read the other issues. They contain so much information about the people and conditions of our county. They're a valuable part of our history that is fading all too fast.

You can contact me with comments or memories by writing to: WCHGS, Attn: Pat Jones, P. O. Box 536, Williamsburg, KY 40769 or e-mail Pj52221@aol.com

If you see a Trojan Horse don't take it home

Rick Thornsberry

Seventeenth Street Christian Church

debunk those myths.

The Old Testament shows us that if we put wine (strong drink) to our neighbor's lips we commit sin.

Habakkuk 2: 15-16

¹⁵ "Woe to him who gives drink to his neighbors, pouring it from the wineskin till they are drunk, so that he can gaze on their naked bodies!"

¹⁶ You will be filled with shame instead of glory.

The New Testament shows us that drunkenness is a sin that will keep us from inheriting the kingdom of heaven.

In Greek mythology the story of the Trojan horse is told. The Greeks could not gain access to the city of Troy through their military efforts so clever Odysseus had a large wooden horse built. The horse was hollow inside to allow the Greek warriors to hide unseen inside and then the rest of the Greeks left as if they had given up. The Trojans came out of the city and looked at the horse. It was such a wonderful work of art that they convinced themselves that it was safe and it would bring them good luck. After the Trojans were asleep or had become drunk the Greeks came out of the wooden horse and destroyed the city of Troy.

I have heard for years how many people try to use the Holy Scriptures and the Lord Jesus Christ to justify their need to indulge themselves in sinful pleasures so I have included two examples below to

Galatians 5: 19-21

¹⁹ The acts of the flesh are obvious: sexual immorality, impurity and debauchery; ²⁰ idolatry and witchcraft; hatred, discord, jealousy, fits of rage, selfish ambition, dissensions, factions ²¹ and envy; drunkenness, orgies, and the like. I warn you, as I did before, that those who live like this will not inherit the kingdom of God.

The scriptures spell it out very clear that Jesus was tempted in every way but He did not sin. If Jesus had gotten drunk or gave alcohol to His disciples then He would be guilty of sin. If He was guilty of sin then His blood sacrifice is no good and our faith would be in vain leaving us without hope. We can't have it both ways.

Live each day as if it were your last, for one day it will be.

For the Glory of God and our Savior Jesus Christ,

Rick Thornsberry

Wrapping up the students instructional unit over the Solar System, Mrs. McKiddy’s 1st grade class at Oak Grove Elementary School put on a culminating activity directed by Student Teacher, Whitney Pratt. The students wrote letters to Principals and staff members to invite them to watch their dramatic performance. Each student held a specific role in making the act come together. The performance consisted of a song with motions, facts read about the Solar System, and inflatable planets based upon Core Content. Healthy tips for a healthy lifestyle!

AMD awareness focuses on protecting and enhancing vision

(ARA) - While many people take their vision for granted, those with Age-related Macular Degeneration (AMD) certainly do not. AMD Awareness is important because the condition deteriorates central vision, affecting everything from seeing faces clearly to literally having a large “blind spot” in the center of your vision, yet many people are unfamiliar with AMD.

AMD is the leading cause of severe vision loss in Americans over age 50, according to the American Optometric Association. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimate 1.8 million have AMD and another 7.3 million people are at risk.

As our population ages at an ever-increasing rate, the incidence of AMD is expected to triple by 2025.

Key risk factors for AMD are age, family history, smoking (past or present), low macular pigment, poor diet, light skin and eyes, high body mass index, and Caucasian women are also at slightly higher risk. And while we cannot change our age, we can proactively manage some of the risk factors and take steps to maintain or improve our vision.

Published in the November 2011 issue of the Journal of Optometry, the Zeaxanthin and Visual Function (ZVF) Study was conducted by Dr. Stuart Richer of Chicago. The study included 60 early AMD patients who consumed a daily dose of 8 mgs of dietary Zeaxanthin for one year.

The patients’ vision improved in the areas of: high contrast visual acuity (reading, needlepoint, etc.), which improved by 8.5 letters on an eye chart; central scotomas or “blind spots” were resolved; foveal shape discrimination was enhanced (ability to discern shapes at varying distances); and finally, a significant percentage of the group reported an improvement in night driving.

As we age, our eyes degrade - a process that begins when we are children. Harmful blue light from the sun, indoor lighting, and even computers, along with poor diet, smoking, and high body mass index can all affect our central vision - but there is good news, too.

A protective pigment in the back of the eye called macular pigment absorbs harmful blue light that can adversely affect eye health. Think of macular pigment as “internal sunglasses” that protect the photoreceptors in the back of the eye - specifically the cones, which are responsible for central vision, color, sharpness, and sensitivity to bright light, among others.

The two key protective pigments in your internal sunglasses are Zeaxanthin (pronounced zee-uh-zan-thin) and Lutein. In order to keep the internal sunglasses thick and dense, it is important to replenish Zeaxanthin, the predominant protective pigment in the center of the macula where the concentration of cones is the highest.

Unfortunately, Zeaxanthin is scarce in the average daily diet, and most people do not consume enough kale, corn, collard greens, spinach, or peppers to naturally replenish what the eyes need most. For example, one would have to eat approximately 20 ears of corn to get a recommended daily dosage of 8-10 mg of dietary Zeaxanthin.

Healthy macular pigment does more than just protect. It can help adults with sensitivity to bright light, glare while driving at night, seeing well in low light environments, and discernment between contrasting colors.

The early AMD patients in the ZVF Study increased their MPOD levels from an average of .33 to .51 - a direct correlation with their visual improvement. MPOD or Macular Pigment Optical Density is a measurement of the macular pigment in the back of the eye, and is performed by many optometrists throughout the country.

Eye vitamins like the EyePromise brand of nutraceuticals help rebuild macular pigment through unique nutritional formulas that feature the highest levels of all natural, dietary Zeaxanthin, derived from special paprika peppers.

“Education is the first step in fighting AMD,” says Dennis Gierhart, PhD, and co-founder of ZeaVision. “Science demonstrates that low macular pigment is an important AMD risk factor, and it’s encouraging to know that dietary Zeaxanthin is helping people maintain and enhance their vision.”

AMD Awareness is about educating people about AMD risks and being proactive to improve vision. Proper nutrition and supplementation can greatly affect eye health and quality of life.

Ask your EyeCare Professional about having your macular pigment measured to protect and enhance your central vision.

Five must-have fitness tools

(ARA) - Everyone wants to look and feel great, and selecting the right workout gear can make all the difference when pursuing a life of health and fitness.

The five tools below are designed to help individuals achieve their wellness goals, whether kick starting a new workout regime or taking a current routine to the next level.

1. Shoes that suit the exercise

It’s important to select shoes that are designed to perform each specific workout activity; a running shoe may look similar to a tennis shoe, but they feel different. Consumers should go to a specialty store for a proper fitting and select a style that suits their specific needs; those with flat feet should choose motion-control shoes, while those with a high arch should opt for greater cushioning.

2. Low-impact resistance band

A resistance band provides an inexpensive way to perform a variety of low-impact yet effective exercises, particularly for smaller body parts that are harder to train using free weights. Bands come in several different tension levels to increase the workout’s difficulty, and their small size allows for easy storage and portability when on a trip.

3. Motivational MP3 player

Listening to music while exercising can help maximize each workout session, but finding the right music player can prove challenging. The Sansa Clip Zip MP3 player from SanDisk features a stopwatch for timing laps, an FM radio and a hands-free design that makes it easy to enjoy music while working out. The player is available for under $50 and is compatible with ular in gyms across the country and even at many workplaces as a substitute for a desk chair. The ball is a great tool for building the core muscles such as abs, back and hips, which help promote overall stabilization of the body.

5. Comfortable yoga mat

Lying on the floor during a workout can feel uncomfortable, but a good mat can make all the difference. A good yoga mat can cushion the hard surface of a tile or wood floor and protect a carpet from extra wear and tear. Most mats are thin but offer excellent padding and grip; they won’t slide across the floor and fitness buffs won’t slide on the mats.

Boys' district tourney may be as balanced as ever before

It's district tournament time again. The 2012 50th district basketball tournament will open Monday night with two games on tap. Monday, number one-seeded Corbin (16-9) will play the fourth-seeded Williamsburg Yellowjackets (14-14). Tuesday night, the number three-seeded Whitley County (4-23) Colonels will play the two-seeded South Laurel Cardinals (9-18). There will be a girls' game each night as well as number one-seeded Whitley County (19-8) will take on fourth seeded Williamsburg (9-18) at 6:30 p.m. Monday with two-seeded Corbin (14-11) playing three-seeded South Laurel (13-11), Tuesday night. The championship game of the boys' tournament will be Friday night and the girls' title game will be Thursday night. Who's the favorite in the boys' tournament? Will it be three-time defending champion, Corbin, the South Laurel Cardinals, the only other team to have won the 50th District since the Cardinals joined in 2006, the Williamsburg Yellow Jackets, who knocked off Corbin and South Laurel during the season

Lady Colonels dominated girls district, can someone knock Whitley?

By Jim McAlister

ALL-AROUNDTHREAT: Whitley County senior Sierra Anderson has lead the Lady Colonels to the district's number one seed.

There are no guarantees that getting the number one seed for the 50th District Tournament is going to get you a championship when the tournament starts. Just ask Corbin Coach Jennifer Parsons and the 2011 Lady Redhounds. Last season Parsons' team went into the tournament as the number one seed. They beat Williamsburg in the opening-round of the 50th District Tournament, but lost in the championship to South Laurel, 42-40. The Lady Redhounds probably had the second-best team in the 13th Region, but drew in the same bracket with Clay County, who has dominated the region for several years now. Corbin beat Harlan in the first-round of the region then had to face the Lady Tigers. Corbin gave one heck of a fight but lost to Clay County, 36-33. That was the closest game the Lady Tigers had in its championship run. Whitley County has gone undefeated during the 2011-'12 regular season in district play and will face the same situation as Corbin did last year. The Lady Colonels are 19-8 and have been ranked as high as 24th in the state, but that doesn't mean much to the likes of Williamsburg, Corbin and the surging South Laurel Lady Cardinals. If the Lady Colonels go into the post-season with a goal in mind and a take the opposition one game at a time. They have beaten everyone once who they will more than likely face in the district and region except Clay Co. That leaves Clay County with a target on their back. The Lady Colonels led by as much as 10 points the first time the two teams played before Whitley Co. let the game slip away. Will they have one more chance?

C-3 Tournament Test: Can Williamsburg pull off a second win over rival Redhounds?

C-4 Home Court: Will the home court make a difference for the Whitley County Colonels?

C-5 Ladies first: Will the first game of the girls' tournament produce familiar results?

C-5 Defending title: Will South Laurel put together a run to repeat as district champs...again!

Redhounds aren't overlooking Williamsburg

By Jim McAlister

jmcalister@corbinnewsjournal.com

The Corbin Redhounds have put themselves in a position to win their fourth 50th District Title in a row after taking the number one seed in next week's tournament.

Coach Tony Pietrowski's team earned the number one seed by winning five of their six district games. Their only loss came at the hands of the Williamsburg Yellow Jackets 55-49 back on Jan. 6. The Redhounds were without leading scorer Travis Smith in that game.

Pietrowski is concerned about the Yellow Jackets and will not be over-looking Williamsburg.

"For us being a number one seed, it is a difficult match-up," said the veteran coach.

"I think Williamsburg has shown the ability to play with anyone in our district. So, we know we have got our hands full. They have played us well both times that we have played them."

"We are going to have to key in and play well to be able to advance to the regional tournament," Pietrowski said.

Corbin is currently 16-10 and have been led by Smith, juniors Zach Farley, Robbie Igo, Hunter Grubb and Kaleb Maguet from a scoring standpoint along with exchange student Victor Berezutchi.

The first time the two teams met at Corbin the Yellow Jackets came out with the victory.

That was a big win for Williamsburg and Coach Patrick Robinson.

Robinson knows his team can play with the Redhounds and must be ready for Monday's game.

"We need to be 100 percent focused on exactly what we are trying to do," Robinson said. "Stick to the game plan and play as one cohesive unit for four quarters."

What concerns Robinson most about the Redhounds?

"The biggest concern I have going into the game is making sure we do a nice job defensively. I want our guys to play super hard and execute on offense," he added.

"Travis Smith really hurt us the last game so hopefully we can defend him much better."

"We play really hard and focus a lot on guarding people as tough as we can," he said.

Williamsburg had compiled a 14-14 record going into their final two games of the regular season against Owsley County and Pineville. Wins over both of those teams would give the Yellow Jackets a winning season, the first for Robinson.

Williamsburg put together an impressive run early in January when they won six straight games before losing to Barbourville 60-50 in the championship game of the 13th Region All "A" Tournament.

The Yellow Jackets have been led by seniors Jared Barton (12.4) and Cameron Smoak (8.8). Sophomore Dalton Sizemore and freshmen Skyler Griffith, Corey Shelton, Chase Lowrie and 8th grader Andrew Griffith have played key roles in the Jackets' success.

Colonels looking to break Cards' tourney streak

By Jim McAlister
jmcaldister@corbinnewsjournal.com

The Whitley County Colonels found themselves in a tough position this year with one of the region's most demanding schedules.

The Colonels are 4-23 with two games remaining. Victories came far and few as Whitley County started the season with seven straight losses before picking up a big district win over Williamsburg, 57-56.

After three losses in the Bethlehem Holiday Classic and a loss to Monroe County in the Campbellsville University Classic, the Colonels defeated host Campbellsville High School, 49-40.

The new year started with four straight losses to Wayne County, Adair County, Perry Central and Corbin. All teams that are considered in the regional hunt.

Whitley County got its third win by beating the Estill

County Engineers, 54-39. Overbey's team lost to district foe, South Laurel on the road 55-52 before taking on the Williamsburg Yellow Jackets in a game that would decide the fourth seed.

The Colonels won a 58-55 thriller and will now play South Laurel once again in the first-round of the tournament.

Whitley County will get the honor of hosting the 50th District Tournament and the Cardinals back to Lawson Gym.

Both games against the Cardinals saw Whitley County take the early leads with South Laurel coming from behind to pull off the win.

Did the Colonels save the best for last?

"We just need to get the kids focused," Overbey said.

"They know that we can compete with South Laurel. It has been a two and three-point ballgame both times we

Lynn Camp set to battle Knox Central

The Lynn Camp Wildcats have struggled in the 2011-12 season, winning just three of 23 games.

The Wildcats of Coach Clyde Dixon have the task of taking on the number one seeded Knox Central Panthers Monday at 7:00 at Lynn Camp High School, site of the 51st District Tournament.

It has been a long season for the Wildcats, who started the season losing their first six games before picking up a win in the Bowman Classic against Owsley County, 64-54.

Then it was seven straight defeats before going on the road to beat the Monticello Trojans 57-51.

The biggest win of the year came on Jan. 24 when the Wildcats traveled to Red Bird and beat the Cardinals, 74-55 as four Lynn Camp players led by senior Shawn Couch with 17 points. Zack Garland added 16 points while Matthew Trosper and Chase Turner had 14 and 11 points respectively.

Dixon hope to see his team gain some momentum from the victory the Wildcats lost four road games in a row.

They returned home for Homecoming '12 last week against a team they had defeated, Monticello.

But, as Dixon said, "We took a big step backwards tonight" after losing to the Trojans 62-56 in a game they should have won.

Lynn Camp closed out the regular season with "Senior Night" against the Harlan Green Dragons and road trips to Burgin and Richmond Model.

The second-year coach was hoping for a couple of wins to end the season on a positive note.

"They kids are heads up and very satisfied where we are in the district play right now," Overbey said.

The first-year coach feels like senior center Aaron Petrey has made a big impact on the team.

"Our inside game is really coming on. Aaron has basically put the team on his back the last four games and has been leading us in scoring. Our inside game as come along, now if we can just get our guards to step up we will be fine," he said.

Overbey said he was concerned about South Laurel's speed. "They will try to make you run with the ball and get you in an up-tempo pace. They can score quick buckets and change the game around."

or the Whitley County Colonels, who played the Redhounds and Cardinals tough twice before losing all four contests.

On paper, the Redhounds are favored to win it for the fifth straight year because they took the number one seed by finishing 5-1 in district competition.

The Redhounds do have the preseason Player of the Year in senior Travis Smith. He finished the year as the region's third leading scorer and the number one scorer in the district with a 17.9 average.

Several Redhounds have been instrumental in leading Corbin to the top spot such as juniors Zach Farley, Hunter Grubb and Robbie Igo. Exchange student Victor Berezutchi has made a big impact on the team from a rebounding and scoring standpoint.

Sophomores Joey Shelton, Kevin Goins and Donnie Wilson have seen playing time and will be key off the bench as well as 8th grader Trevor Hill.

A big addition to the Redhounds' line-up came at the Christmas break when junior Kaleb Maguet joined the team. He has made a big impact and gives Corbin that much more depth.

Tony Pietrowski is a young but veteran coach. He has succeeded in winning four straight district titles and that's why you have to consider Corbin as the district favorite.

Coach Patrick

Robinson has challenged his Williamsburg Yellow Jackets this season and they have responded with a 14-14 record, the second best in the district. They defeated both Corbin and South Laurel for the first time in many years, but they had trouble getting past rival Whitley County.

At one point during the season the Yellow Jackets had a 1-7 record, since that time they have put together a 13-7 effort and can't be counted out against the Redhounds in the first game of the district.

The Yellow Jackets have a balanced attack with a mixture of old and young. Seniors Jared Barton and Cameron Smoak have really been true leaders on the court. Barton leads the Jackets with 12.5 points per game while Smith averages close to 10 points and 10 rebounds a game. Senior Donnie Bowlin has gotten a lot of minutes this year and is one of the better defensive players when he is in the line-up.

The youth factor comes in with sophomore Dalton Sizemore, freshmen Corey Shelton, Skyler Griffith, Chase Lowrie and 8th grader Andrew Griffith. Those five will likely be the starting five for the next couple of years.

Robinson too has developed a bench as the Yellow Jackets have approached the post-season. Williamsburg came out of the six district games with a minus-6 margin. The four games they lost were a total of 17 points.

First-year coach Jerry Overbey took over when Chris Baker resigned at Whitley County last season. Baker had put together one of the toughest schedules ever for the Colonels, who lost six seniors and a promising sophomore.

With only one senior with any playing time, Overbey knew it was going to be a tough year. But, did he know how tough? The Colonels have only four wins in 27 games. However, two of those wins came against rival Williamsburg and the Colonels stayed away from the number one seed. They beat the Yellow Jackets by one point at Lawson Gym and three points at Williamsburg.

The Colonels also have wins over Campbellsville and Estill County.

Whitley County can be a dangerous team because they have already shown that with narrow losses to Corbin and South Laurel. The Colonels lost its two games to South Laurel by a total of five points and lost the two games to Corbin by a total of 15 points.

Two Colonels have been red-hot this season in junior Michael Powers, who is averaging 15.6 points per game and senior Aaron Petrey, 13.9 points per game. Senior guard Josh Couch has proved he can light it up with several big games this season as well as Matt Lawson, a junior forward.

Lady Colonels heavy favorite, but beware of Jackets

By Jim McAlister
jmcaldister@corbinnewsjournal.com

The Williamsburg Lady Yellow Jackets will have the task of playing number one seeded Whitley County Monday at 6:30 p.m., on the Lady Colonels home court in the 50th District opener.

The teams have played three times this year with Whitley County winning all three meetings. The Lady Colonels won at Williamsburg 58-27, and then took fourth place in the Cumberland Falls Invitational with a 60-37 victory. The last meeting came Jan. 24 with the Lady Colonels again winning big, 58-29.

The Lady Colonels have won 14 of their last 15 games and ten in a row.

How does a team prepare for a fourth meeting to a team they have lost to each time? “We have to come mentally ready to play,” Williamsburg Coach Andrea Ellis said. “That’s been a big struggle for us besides the fact of getting to know each other and playing as a team. We have to make sure our minds are right and not intimidated.”

“We have to have the confidence that we can go out there and actually win the game,” Ellis said.

Girls Tournament Game 1 — Feb. 20, 6:30 p.m. Whitley County vs. Williamsburg

Ellis was without the services of junior Carissa Conlin for two of those games. Conlin is capable of having a big game and scored a game-high 40 points in a win over Jellico.

“She didn’t make a big difference at Whitley County, but she was just coming back from the six weeks lay-off and she was a little rusty,” Ellis said. “She is finally getting her stride back and her shot back. I think she will definitely play a big part in this game.”

While she was out, several of her teammates stepped up and improved tremendously. “Tara Davis has really come in and helped us a lot,” Ellis said. “Megan Lawson has come in and started scoring.

We had several girls to step up when Carissa was out because a lot of times that pressure was on her to be the playmaker. She was our go-to player and with her being hurt it was almost a blessing in disguise because it has helped a lot of our girls to develop and help our team come along way from the beginning of the season,” Ellis said.

Whitley County Coach Larry Anderson will have to prevent the Lady Colonels from overlooking Williamsburg.

“The fear we have after beating them three times is overlooking them going into the post-season.”

“I’m not sure with a young team we understand that and I don’t know if we have learned that lesson yet,” Anderson said. “I have a fear of going in and taking something for granted and looking ahead too far. We have been emphasizing that every game.”

“We want to play one game at a time and come out ready to play,” Anderson said.

There are plenty of positives for Anderson and his team. “We have been on a pretty good roll since Christmas and have lost only one game. I think winning becomes an attitude and right now we have that and expect to win,” Anderson said.

“I like the fact that if somebody is not on their game that night we have seven or eight other kids that can step up,” Anderson said. “I think that makes us hard to defend right now.”

Whitley County is loaded and has one of the deepest teams, if not the deepest most talented team in the region.

Sophomore Brandi Smith is the fourth leading scorer in the region with an 18.1 average. Sierra Anderson and Bethany Powers are hitting on right at 10 points per game. Still players like Kandace Craig, Taylor Dingess, Maria Johnson, Sabrina Sizemore and Hallie Jones are capable of having big scoring nights.

After all, the Lady Colonels are the region’s top scoring machine with an average of 61.1 per game. That puts them 17th in the state. The Lady Colonels have been ranked as high as 22nd in the Louisville Courier-Journal and 14th in the Lexington Herald-Leader.

All six losses have come to teams ranked among the top 25. They lost to Clay County, currently ranked 16th, Casey County before their top player went down with a knee injury, Boone County, Highlands and Lincoln County, the 12th region favorite. They also lost to River Ridge of Georgia, who was in the Cumberland Falls Invitational and was ranked 10th in their class at the time of the tournament.

Corbin looking for third win over Cardinals

The Corbin Lady Redhounds own two wins over the South Laurel Lady Cardinals this season. The first was a come-from-behind victory at South Laurel, but the second came rather easy, 50-35 at Gilliam Gym.

However, in recent weeks, the Lady Redhounds have lost four-of-five games while the Lady Cardinals had an eight-game winning streak before losing to Clay County Monday night, 45-33.

Corbin Coach Jennifer Parsons thinks the third match-up in the 50th District Tournament next week will be a tough game for her Lady Redhounds. “I think they are playing really good basketball right now,” she said.

“Even though we beat them both times before that is no indication of how they will come in to this game. Coach (Konnie) Snyder will have them geared up and ready to go in the tournament,” Parsons said.

“I think the key for us is that we are going to have to handle pressure, both inside and out,” she said. “They pose us problems with Taylor Arthur

Girls Tournament Game 2 — Feb. 21, 6:30 p.m. Corbin vs. South Laurel inside and a good scorer in (Macy) Clontz. Those two concern me on the defensive end.”

Corbin will go into the game averaging 46.4 points defensively while South Laurel is close behind giving up 48.0.

“We have to be on our game offensively too,” Parsons said. “We have struggled at times to score inside and we have to put a complete game together.”

“Coach Snyder does a good job with them and always has her team ready at tournament time,” Parsons added. “We’re going to have to make sure we have our girls ready as well and make sure we don’t look to what we have done in the past. We have to be ready to play this game because at the post season you go back to being 0-0 and it’s anybody’s game and it is important for us to realize that.”

“With a young team that is what we have to emphasize. With the inexperience of what we have done they need not to look at what has already been done, but to know that this is today and we have to play today,” Parsons said.

Corbin will take some positives into the game against South Laurel, like beating the Lady Cardinals twice and coming from behind to win on the road. “We’ve played a tough schedule and will to the end of the season,” she said. “We’re using these games to teach them that we are building for the tournament. These tougher games now will help us for the post-season tournaments. That’s what we are focusing on now.”

The Lady Redhounds have played an impressive schedule and are currently 14-11 after its loss to Clay County Saturday.

Corbin is 9-5 against region opponents with two of those losses to Whitley County. They also lost to Bell County (65-59), Knox Central (61-60) in overtime and Harlan County (46-38). All of those teams are at the top of the region.

BURNING ISSUES

► Last week was so dead in terms of news that it seemed as if NASCAR had failed to budget for the Sprint Cup schedule running a week late.

► The last time the Daytona 500 ran as late as Feb. 26 was in 1967, when Mario Andretti won in a rare NASCAR appearance.

► The race was scheduled a week later than usual because NASCAR officials feared that an NFL players' strike — which ended up being settled in time — would push the pro football season back and clash with stock-car racing's premier event.

► Five times a driver has followed up a Budweiser Shootout (once the Busch Clash) victory with a Daytona 500 triumph. Dale Jarrett (1996, 2000) did it twice. The others were Bobby Allison (1982), Bill Elliott (1987) and Jeff Gordon (1997).

► The NASCAR changes designed to reduce tag-team drafting could make the end of the Daytona 500 particularly perilous. Rules have changed so that cars will likely overheat if they bump-draft for several laps. The end of the race is when it will be difficult to back off, which could mean that several engines explode near the front of the pack at the end.

► With NASCAR's most prestigious race on the line, it's hard to expect a "racer" not to race.

► Isn't it amazing that Ryan Newman has won the Daytona 500 ... and Tony Stewart hasn't?

► The speeds in the Daytona 500 could be the highest since the late 1980s.

► The change to electronic fuel injection (EFI) could make the consequences greater if a car runs out of fuel. Restarting is likely to be much more complicated and time-consuming.

► A former winner, Ward Burton, is planning to compete in Daytona's Camping World Truck Series race. The older Burton brother is also attempting to develop the career of 19-year-old son Jeb, who has Truck plans, as well.

SPRINT CUP SERIES

No. 21 MOTORCRAFT/QUICK LANE FORD

John Clark/NASCAR This Week

Trevor Bayne's Cinderella story of winning the Daytona 500 last year makes him a driver to watch for this year's race. The Wood Brothers driver will run a limited Cup schedule while running a full schedule in the Nationwide Series.

Trevor's Triumph

Bayne still getting used to Daytona 500 prestige

By Monte Dutton
NASCAR This Week

What happens to the miracle winner of the Daytona 500 ... a year later?

Trevor Bayne, only 20 at the time, won NASCAR's most prestigious race in only his second try at the Sprint Cup level. His year had some rather dramatic ups and downs. Bayne, from Knoxville, Tenn., missed a portion of the schedule while dealing with a mysterious illness that required treatment at the Mayo Clinic. He then won his first Nationwide Series race at Texas Motor Speedway in November.

The Cinderella story of Daytona didn't change much in the long run. The Wood Brothers hoped to use the victory to gain sponsorship sufficient to compete in the full Cup schedule. That never materialized. Neither did a full-time Cup ride for Bayne this year. He will again compete for the Nationwide Series title while running a limited Cup schedule in the Woods' No. 21 Ford, which receives support from Roush Fenway Racing.

Bayne's performance at Daytona was impressive all month a year ago. Though few expected him to win the 500, most thought he was a driver to watch, based on his performances in other races and practice sessions leading up to the sport's premier race. This year conditions have changed, though.

"I don't have a lot of experience with 'pack drafting,' so for me it's something totally new again, just like last year coming into the two-car (bump-drafting) deal," Bayne said. "It was kind of fresh, a totally different mindset. If that's how it's going to be, you just think for yourself.

"I think it can be fun, but it's definitely a lot more nerve-wracking than the two-car draft. With the two-car draft, you can obviously just sit back a little bit more and wait it out and then go when you need to and ... it's a little bit easier to make passes."

In some ways, Bayne is still getting adjusted to being the Daytona 500 winner.

"I'm kind of in the same mindset that I was last year," he said. "Last year I came in thinking there's no way we can win this, and now I'm coming back saying there's no way we can win two in a row, but then the Wood Brothers keep showing up with great race cars and they keep showing up with the guys that can do it and that can win, and I think that's what's so important."

FEUD OF THE WEEK

Biffle

Jeff Burton

GREG BIFFLE VS. JEFF BURTON

Both are attempting to recover from difficult seasons. Neither made the Chase. It is inevitable that their comebacks will be compared with each other. Burton's finishes improved markedly near the end of the 2011 season. Biffle had a pair of top-10 finishes and a top five in the Chase, but the rest of his finishes were well outside the top-10.

NASCAR This Week's Monte Dutton gives his take: "Burton is more likely to be consistent. Biffle is more likely to win races. Burton could use a few victories. Biffle must improve his consistency."

LEGENDS AND LORE

The Brothers Wallace

NASCAR's three Wallace brothers — Rusty, now retired; Mike and Kenny — will likely hit 1,000 combined starts in the Nationwide Series this year. Kenny now has 522, Mike 416; Rusty has 42. The current total is 980. Kenny Wallace has run more races in the series than any other driver. The Daytona opener should tie Mike Wallace with Tommy Houston for third all-time. Williamsburg hangs tough before losing to Pulaski County Maroons

By Jim McAlister
jmcaldister@corbinnewsjournal.com

It was a battle of David and Goliath Monday night at Williamsburg High School when the much larger Pulaski County High School Lady Maroons defeated the Lady Yellow Jackets, 65-56.

Pulaski County is a class 5A high school where as Williamsburg is one of the smallest in the state, but that didn't stop the Lady Jackets from playing with the Lady Maroons.

Pulaski County eased out to a 16-15 lead in the first quarter, but Williamsburg's Tarrah Davis got hot in the second quarter and led the Lady Jackets to a 25-24 lead at the half.

The Lady Maroons (18-10) flexed their muscles in the third quarter and went on a 25-9 run to take the lead for good. Guard Brittany Warren scored 10 of her 23 points in the period to pace the Lady Maroons.

Williamsburg (8-19) was led in scoring by junior Carissa Conlin with 18 points while Davis tossed in 14 points and Megan Lawson added 13 points.

Williamsburg 56, Pineville 41: The Lady Jackets picked up a win over the Pineville Lady Lions Friday in Pineville. The Lady Jackets jumped out to a 15-8 lead and never looked back. Megan Lawson led Williamsburg with 20 points. She scored eight of her team's 15 points in the first quarter while Tarrah Davis added five points.

Williamsburg pushed out to a 31-20 lead at the half as Davis hit three 3-pointers to lead the Lady Jackets in the quarter.

Davis finished the night with 14 points to reach double figures. Sophomore Devin Enix led the Lady Lions with a game-high 25 points.

Williamsburg closes out the regular season on the road Friday night against the Barbourville Lady Tigers. The Lady Jackets beat the Lady Tigers, 60-55 earlier this season.

Monster Truck Nationals to be held this weekend at The Arena in Corbin

By Dean Manning

dmanning@corbinnewsjournal.com

He is sitting 11 feet up in the air. There is a 572 cubic inch motor that produces 1,500 horsepower. Combined with the chassis and tires, Rick Long's ride at The Arena in Corbin, affectionately known as "Bigfoot" weighs in at 10,250 pounds. While he can't hang his arm out the window of the E-3 Spark Plugs Bigfoot #15 because the controls are in the center of the cab, Long said driving Bigfoot isn't much different than driving the pickup truck on which it is based.

"The engine is automatic and it has a steering wheel," Long explained. "But you have four-wheel steering, meaning you can turn the front and the back tires so it takes both hands and both feet to drive."

Though he won't be able to do it Friday or Saturday at The Arena during the Monster Truck Nationals, Long said he has been to drag strips across the country where he has had the opportunity to run Bigfoot wide open.

"We actually had two Bigfoots and traced them side-by-side down the track," Long said. "It will top out at about 85 miles per hour," Long said.

Bigfoot's 66x43x55 tires make the truck too wide to drive down the highway. While it doesn't have some of the safety features of the typical family pickup truck such as turn signals, brake lights and a horn, Long said Bigfoot will not sneak up on anyone.

If Bigfoot were sitting behind you at a traffic light, the only thing you would see in the rearview mirror would be suspension and frame.

"You will hear it coming because there is no exhaust system," Long said.

Long said he started working with Bigfoot in the maintenance shop in the early 2000's, working his way up to driver.

wheelies, Long has used Bigfoot to jump school buses.

His favorite thing to do with Bigfoot is take it out to meet up with fans through the Make-a-Wish Foundation, which works to enrich the lives of children with life-threatening medical conditions and give them the experience of a lifetime.

"It just makes you feel really good," Long said of the work with Make-a-Wish.

Long and Bigfoot will be joined Friday and Saturday at The Arena by fellow monster trucks Bigfoot Bessie, Star Marshal, Chalkboard Chuck, Lucas Oil Stabilizer and Ironman.

"Fans will hear a lot of noise," Long said, noting the trucks will compete in drag racing, wheelie competition, free-style and doughnuts.

In addition, the car chomping

Transaurus will be in the house, devouring cars and spitting fire, along with the World's Youngest Monster Truck Team, Kid KJ and Team Lil' Mighty Monsters. The trio of 8-year-old Kid KJ, his 6-year-old brother, Jake, and 14-year-old Cassie will perform in their half scale monster trucks.

Friday night there will be a free pit party beginning at 5:30 p.m. at which the drivers will be available for autographs and pictures may be taken with the monster trucks.

The show begins at 7:30 p.m. each night.

Tickets are $15 in advance and available at The Arena Box Office, ticketmaster.com or charge by phone, 1-800-745-3000.

Special events scheduled for Speedway in April

Corbin Speedway this week announced two special events to be added to their regular program in the month of April.

Keith Page, general manager of the speedway, said lawn mower races will be conducted on a specially-prepared dirt track inside the paved quarter-mile oval on Saturday evening, April 7, and a demolition derby will be added to the program in the following weekend.

"If you've got an old riding mower at home," Page said, "you might as well bring it to the track and see how fast you can go around our inside dirt track. We won't have any grass to mow, but we'll see how fast your mower runs and how it handles. We can't make it real easy for the competitors, so there just may be a few obstacles in your way. Try it if you dare."

He added that engines on the mowers must be stock, but the mower deck may be removed.

Entry fee will be $10 per mower, and the winner will receive $100 and a trophy.

"If we have more than ten racers, we'll have more than one race," Page explained, "but either way each winner will receive $100 and a trophy."

For the demolition derby, Page said, all prospective entrants should contact him by e-mail at his address listed on the track's website, or by phone. His number is also listed on the website.

"Cash prizes will depend on the number of cars participating," he added, "but we have talked to a number of prospective entrants in Tennessee, and interest is already high. I also have heard that the boys in the Red Boiling Springs area are experts at this, and pretty hard to beat."

All cash generated by the demolition derby teams in the form of entry fees and pit pass fees will be part of the purse, Page noted, the same as with Corbin Speedway's regular competitors.

The general manager said a number of other special events are being planned for the 2012 season.

"We'll have something in May, but we're not ready to announce it yet," he commented. "June - definitely not yet. August - it'll be hot, but it'll be worth the wait. September - we won't let things cool down. October - things could get downright haunting."

The track's website, www.corbinspeedway.com, contains the complete schedule, and addition information on upcoming events is also posted on the site, as well as on the Corbin Speedway Facebook page.

Spring soccer sign-ups underway

Grace On the Hill, located at 1632 Cumberland Falls Hwy in Corbin, have begun sign-ups for their indoor Community Soccer League for boys and girls ages 4,5 and 6 (ages are as of Oct. 1, 2011).

The cost is $20 with scholarships available. The deadline is Wednesday, Feb. 29. For more information call 528-6840 or on their website at www.graceonthehill.org.

Redhounds could use some magic moments in post-season

I was listening to Dave and Dave do the play-by-play of the McCreary Central game with the Redhounds last week when they mentioned that Howard Jones had stopped by to say hello to his friends in Corbin.

Howard “Cotton” Jones and his brother Harley went to Lynn Camp High School. Howard was a very successful high school coach at Pine Knot High School in the 50’s and 60’s. Howard is the father of McCreary Central Coach Rob Jones.

The Redhounds stretched their winning streak to seven games last week before suffering a setback, losing to Rockcastle County in Mt. Vernon.

The Redhounds will play their final home game of the season Friday night against the Harlan Green Dragons. That game will close out the regular season.

Coach Tony Pietrowski and his team must get it all together as the 50th District Tournament begins Monday. The Redhounds will face Williamsburg, needing a win to advance to the 13th Region Tournament.

Coach P will play several players in an effort to compete for his third regional championship in the last four years. Travis Smith must play, as we know he can. Travis has always been a clutch performer and can lead a team to a championship. Travis is simply the best player in the region.

Zach Farley has become very aggressive and can score from the perimeter as well as drive the ball to the basket.

Robbie Igo can be counted on for all out effort, and to defend the paint, rebound and give the team inside scoring presence.

Kaleb Maguet is very intelligent and very team oriented and Kaleb defends extremely well.

Kyle West is fundamentally sound and is another hard-nosed kid playing inside.

Trevor Hill may have as good of skill sets as anyone on the team. This young man’s future begins now.

Victor Berezutchi is big, strong and athletic and can make a huge difference on the boards and inside. I can still remember Victor breaking away and splitting two defenders for a two-handed dunk. Anyone capable of making that move can help.

Joey Shelton is very versatile and can be effective inside or outside.

County, leading by one point over Corbin in the 13th Region game in 2007. The Redhounds must go the length of the floor, two passes and freshman Madison Johnson lofts a shot from deep in the corner, SWISH! Redhounds win.

2008 – Knox Central dominates the Redhounds for three quarters, Isaac Wilson scores 42 points and Travis Smith hits two free throws with 2.2 seconds to face a fourth overtime win over Bell County and go to the state.

We need some of the magic moments starting Monday evening.

Barbourville Reader

Friday evening I ran into Wayne Willis, a man I have a great deal of respect for. For all he does for the youth of Corbin now and has done over the years.

Wayne was telling me of a reader we have in Barbourville named Jack Ketchum. I would assume that is my old friend, Jack Ketchum, who was the best modified pitch/catcher I ever saw play the game.

When I think of Jack, I always recall one play I saw him make. The batter bunted the ball and the runner on second broke for third. Jack flashed out from behind the plate and grabbed the ball in mid-air and out raced the runner trying to return to second base for a double play. That has been a few years, but I’ll bet he could still do it.

Add More Time

If I had any pull or knew anyone with any leverage with the Kentucky High School Athletic Association I would propose that they would either increase the quarters to ten minutes or introduce a 30-second shot clock for high school basketball.

Unfortunately, the only one I know is Paul Pietrowski, Sr. and he is assigning secretary for the 13th Region for volleyball and ping-pong or Monopoly or something and has little pull.

WHITLEY: Lady Colonels stay on a roll with 10th straight win

“This is a big win for our team,” Anderson said. “I think we played one of our best games of the season. I think defensively it was the best. A couple of times in the third and fourth quarters we got out of position down in the paint and let Haley Perkins knock down a couple of shots, but overall our team defense was good.”

“We did a good job on the boards not giving them second shots,” Anderson said. “I thought we did a good job answering all of their runs. Somebody came up and knocked a big one down every time they tried to make a run at us.”

“I thought Kandace Craig did a good job competing on the boards,” Anderson said. “That’s the thing that she can bring to us that nobody else can. She is so strong in there, we just need for her to be the Windex lady and just clean those boards every time.”

Glasgow took an early 4-0 lead, but Whitley County came back to tie the score at 7-7 and went on to outscored the Lady Scotties 11-3 and take a 18-10 score into the second period.

Whitley County held Glasgow to six second quarter points while the Lady Colonels added 12 points. Maria Johnson had a 3-pointer and Bethany Powers took a steal to the basket for a 23-13 lead. Powers added another basket before Glasgow’s Hydeia Depp hit one-of-two from the free throw line.

Smith scored five straight points including a three-point play as Whitley County took a 30-14 lead in the game. Glasgow’s Kelsey Greer hit two free throws just before the end of the half as the Lady Colonels took a 30-16 lead to the break.

Whitley County began to pull away early in the third quarter when Sierra Anderson hit a 3-pointer and Craig went inside the paint for a basket. After a Glasgow free throw, Powers scored from close range and Johnson added a three-point play, as Whitley County owned a 40-17 lead.

The Lady Scotties could get no closer than the final margin.

Four players finished in double figures with Smith leading the way with 16 points. Anderson added 14 points while Powers and Craig tossed in 10 points each.

Whitley Co. 75, North Laurel 58: It was Senior Night at North Laurel Friday evening and the Lady Jaguars came out ready to play. North Laurel jumped all over the Lady Colonels and led 22-13 at the first stop. The North Laurel lead could be in double-digits before long as Tiffany Woolum and Samantha Profit led the Lady Jaguars to a 39-30 margin at the half.

However, it was the Whitley County defense that proved to be the difference. The Lady Colonels press began to result in North Laurel turnovers and Whitley County outscored the Lady Jaguars, 24-10.

Whitley County took a 54-49 lead into the final quarter and never looked back. The Lady Colonels, led by Smith’s 31 points, went on to win by 17 points.

“We woke up and played hard in the second half,” Anderson said. “I was a little worried at the half.”

Whitley County goes for win number 21 Friday night when they host the Bell County Lady Kats.

ROLLING IN TWO POINTS: Lynn Camp senior Shaun Couch gets the finger tip roll to go through the net against the Monticello Trojans in last week’s loss, 62-67. The Wildcats will close out the regular season at Richmond Model Friday night.

It’s an unhappy Homecoming for Wildcats in loss to Trojans, 62-56

It wasn’t a happy Homecoming for the Lynn Camp Wildcats Thursday night. After a skirmish in the JV game that got some of the top Wildcat reserves suspended from the varsity contest, the Cats played poorly in the varsity contest, losing to lowly Monticello, 62-56.

Lynn Camp had beaten this same Monticello team, 57-51 on the road Jan. 13.

The Wildcats looked impressive in the first eight minutes and looked like they were going to rip the Trojans for an easy win as they jumped out to a ten-point lead (19-9) and led 22-14 at the first stop.

Lynn Camp Coach Clyde Dixon was disappointed with his team’s play in the second quarter as Monticello came back to take a 35-34 lead at the half. “Give Monticello credit they wanted it more than Lynn Camp. They played harder and done a good job.”

“It hurt us when we lost a couple of players in that JV deal, but that’s no excuse. They just out-played us. We must have missed 15 lay-ups tonight,” Dixon said.

“We took a leap backwards tonight,” he said. “The way they beat us is the way we beat them over there. We made lazy passes and had turnovers. We came out in the first quarter and played the way we are capable of, but we ended by taking a big step backwards.”

Monticello senior Aaron Perkins poured in 31 points to lead the Trojans to the win. Senior Kevin Simpson added 14 points. Junior Matthew Trospier with 20 points led Lynn Camp while Shawn Couch added 10 points to the Wildcats’ totals.

Lynn Camp will end the regular season on the road with a Wednesday night game at Burgin. They will travel to Richmond Model Friday.

Lynn Camp to meet Knox Central

The Lynn Camp Lady Wildcats will host the Girls’ 51st District Tournament at Lynn Camp High School next week.

Lynn Camp enters the tournament with a 9-12 record with two games remaining in the regular season. The Lady Wildcats were scheduled to play at Bell County tonight and at Richmond Model Friday night.

Coach Richard Jones’ team had won five of their last six games including two in a row.

The Lady Wildcats defeated Jellico, Tn., last week 53-45 on the road and took a 43-23 win over Wolfe County prior to that game.

The last defeat came at the hands of the Corbin Lady Redhounds, 55-34. The also beat Jackson County 45-32, OBI 56-26 and Red Bird 53-30 in the last six games.

Lynn Camp took the fourth-seed into the tournament where they will play the Knox Central Lady Panthers.

Lynn Camp lost to the Lady Panthers in their only meeting of the season, 44-31.

They also lost district games to Barbourville 34-25 and Pineville, 64-58.

Knox Central comes into the tournament with a record of 16-10 with two games remaining on the regular season.

Knox Central is coached by Darren Mills and is led in scoring by Shakira Gregory, Jenna Mills and Cassi Shippy.

The Lady Panthers have lost four of its last six games, but have wins over Barbourville (70-58) and Corbin (61-60) during that span of games.

The teams will meet Monday at 6:00 p.m.

Hounds can't dig out of hole

Corbin falls behind 20-5 in first quarter, but rallies to catch the Black Bears

By Jim McAlister

The Harlan County Black Bears invaded Gilliam Gym Monday night and threatened to rip the Redhounds apart. But, the Redhounds stood up for themselves in the fight and gave the 13th region's number one team all they wanted and more in a 71-64 loss.

Harlan County came in with the region's best record, 24-4 and literally pushed the Redhounds all over the court in the first quarter, jumping out to a 20-5 lead.

Exchange student Victor Berezutchi scored all five points for the Redhounds. Harlan County junior Tyler Brewer had his way with the Redhounds, scoring 14 of his team-high 25 points.

"We dug such a hole in that first quarter, we were just battling to get back," Corbin Coach Tony Pietrowski said. "You can't do that against a team the caliber of Harlan County and expect to win."

The Black Bears kept their claws in the Redhounds for most of the second quarter and led 34-17 when James Bond hit a runner in the paint with 2:40 left in the opening half.

However, that's when the Redhounds got up off the floor and fought back. Junior Zach Farley hit a pair of free throws followed by a 3-pointer by Kaleb Maguet. Then a steal at midcourt led to a Farley basket and Corbin had cut the lead to ten, 34-24 less than a minute later.

Chase Calton hit a pair of free throws as the Black Bears went to the dressing room with a 36-24 lead.

"I am really proud of my kids. I thought we showed a lot of resilience. We played three quarters of really good basketball," Pietrowski said. "The kids stepped up and played big roles and made some big shots. We will get better from this game down the road."

Farley took charge for the Redhounds from that point on. He scored eight of the 14 points in the third quarter as the two teams scored 14 points each.

It was Corbin putting on the pressure in the fourth quarter as the Redhounds outscored the Bears, 7-2 in the first two-and-half minutes. Farley scored six of the seven points.

Farley connected on a pair of free throws when Aaron Caldwell jumped on a pile of players going for the ball and was awarded with a technical foul. Farley's free throws allowed Corbin to pull with seven (52-45).

Junior Hunter Grubb got in on the scoring act and nailed two 3-pointers in an 8-0 run that saw Corbin pull within three, 58-55 with 3:19 left in the game.

Corbin got even closer with 1:26 left when Farley nailed a 3-pointer and Harlan County held onto a 62-60 lead.

A three-point play by Brewer took some of the air out of the Redhounds as he pushed the visitors back on top by five, 65-60. A couple of rushed shots by the Redhounds resulted in scoreless trips down the court.

Colonels surprise Jackson Co., 59-53

The Whitley County Colonels added a win to their season totals Monday night when they turned back the Jackson County Generals, 59-53 at Lawson Gym.

The Colonels (5-23) turned up the heat early in the game, forcing the Generals to 14 first half turnovers as Whitley County mounted a 25-8 lead.

"We played well," Whitley County Coach Jerry Overbey said. "Our defense created a lot of turnovers in the first half."

Senior Aaron Petrey had a big night for the Colonels with a game-high 25 points. Playing without several other starters due to injury or various other reasons, the Colonels got plenty of help from sophomore Chad Foley and freshman James Sasko. Foley finished the game with nine points while Sasko added eight points.

In a slow-tempo style game, the Colonels eased out to a 12-6 lead in the first quarter. The Colonels' defense held Jackson County to two points in the second period while adding 13 points as Whitley County went to the break with a 25-8 lead.

Jackson County (12-14) forced Whitley County to run with the ball in the second half and picked up the tempo. The Generals outscored the Colonels, 21-16 and cut the lead to 41-29 heading into the final period.

Senior Josh Couch added 10 points in the win.

The Generals, led by senior Justin Fox and freshman Zach Lawson, cut the lead to five points late in the game, but the Colonels held on for the six-point win.

The Colonels will close out the regular season Thursday night when the Bell County Bobcats come to Lawson Gym.

Lady Colonels extend winning streak to 10 games, now 20-6

By Jim McAlister

The Whitley County Lady Colonels won their 10th game in a row Monday night when they routed the Jackson County Lady Generals, 88-40 at Lawson Gym.

It was the third win in four days for the Lady Colonels, who came from behind to beat North Laurel, 75-58 Friday, then knocked off 14th ranked Glasgow, 59-43 in the Cancer Awareness Classic Saturday at Pulaski County High School.

Whitley County Coach Larry Anderson said despite rolling over the Lady Generals his team came out flat in the first quarter. "They played well in the first quarter and we didn't," he said.

The Lady Colonels did, however, take a 25-18 lead after the first eight minutes as freshman Taylor Dingess came out on fire and nailed three 3-pointers in the quarter.

Whitley County (20-6) picked up their defensive intensity in the second and third quarters, outscoring Jackson County 47-7. The Lady Generals managed just one point in the second quarter as the Lady Colonels scored 25 points and took a 50-19 lead into the half.

"We played two solid quarters of defense," Anderson said. "We put some pressure on them and cut out the easy points."

Sophomore Brandi Smith scored 13 points in the second frame while Dingess, who led all scorers in the win with 26 points, added five points.

Whitley Co. 59, Glasgow 43: The Lady Colonels got an impressively easy win over the Lady Scotties of Glasgow, ranked 14th in the state last week according to the Lexington Herald-Leader.

Glasgow had won seven straight and 15 out of their last 16 points before the Lady Colonels tagged the western Kentucky team with the 16-point loss.

The Lady Scotties had suffered just three losses prior to the game, losing to Monroe County (59-55), Clay County (54-49) and Monroe County in the 4th Region All "A" finals, 51-46.
